Strategic Bombers Plaster Red Jungle

Giant B-52 in air

Heavies on Stage In Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Twenty-seven B-52 jet bombers on a 2,200-mile mission from Guam rained tons of explosives on a South Vietnamese area where Communist guerrillas were massed for surprise raids in the Saigon area, the defence department said Thursday.

Thirty of the big strategic bombers went on the mission but two collided in the air and plummeted into the sea west of the Philippines with a total of 12 crewmen aboard. One airman was rescued and other survivors were sighted on rafts about 30 miles west of Luzon.

One plane flew over the assigned target, only 25 to 30 miles northwest of Saigon, but a malfunction prevented it from dropping its deadly load.

The pilot of a tanker plane which refueled the B-52s in flight reported that he saw the two bombers collide and crash into the sea.

Air Force sources declined to evaluate the results of the raid on "D" zone. Newspapersmen who flew over the area after the raid said there was no sign of damage to huts in a jungle clearing but that no people or animals were visible. Trees in the area are more than 100 feet tall, making an accurate damage estimate from the air impossible.

Several sticks of bombs struck near the edge of jungle patches within a few hundred feet of cultivated rice fields and clusters of houses. Newspapersmen said there seemed little doubt there were casualties and that many must have been civilians.

Enclave in Enclave Slum Amid Renewal

The shadow of Communist China hangs heaviest over one small section of the booming metropolis of Hong Kong.

There, in the section known as the Walled City, time stands still in narrow, twisted alleys flanked by crisscrossing buildings.

This is the home of the small, textile sweat shops, some vice, and several thousand people just trying to claw out an existence among fetid garbage piles.

British Touch

The fact that the Walled City has no walls provides a property British touch.

It crumbles on a hillside off the end of the runway of Hong Kong's Kai Tak airport, with big jets roaring overhead at intervals of a few minutes. It is a monument to the Cold War.

Around it cluster the eight-storey modern apartments built under the crown colony's resettlement plan.

Given Tour

I was fortunate to be taken on a tour of the Walled City by assistant police commissioner Charles Sutcliffe, a tough career policeman who came to Hong Kong from East Africa where he was posted during the Mau Mau troubles.

Mr. Sutcliffe heads the criminal investigation branch of the colony's police force. He's big, quiet spoken, bushy-browed and greying at the temples, wears a business suit and looks his jacket in the trunk of the police car in case it's stolen. He doesn't like newspaper men who go home and write that Hong Kong is the world's wickedest city. In fact, he says, there is little serious crime despite Hong Kong's population which is now approaching 4,000,000. During my stay two policemen were wounded in a running gun battle with prisoners trying to escape. But there is little evidence of organized crime.

Opium Dens

Vice clean-ups have been frequent and effective. One of the areas which got a lot of police attention was the Walled City where shutting down of brothels and opium dens was a prelude to levelling of the tiny enclave to make way for modern apartments. As we stooped to squeeze through tight spots in the dark and dank alleyways a few of the local citizenry scrambled to their feet and left in a hurry as they recognized the

Viet Nam Peace Mission Proposed

Commonwealth Intervenes

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth leaders intervened dramatically in the Viet Nam crisis Thursday by calling on five government heads to undertake a peace mission to "make contact with the countries chiefly concerned."

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain was appointed mission chairman. Invited to serve on the commission were the chiefs of government of Ghana, Nigeria, Ceylon and Trinidad-Tobago. A conference spokesman stressed the five premiers were invited to serve and could decline.

This appeared particularly significant in the case of Ceylon's newly-elected prime minister, Dudley Senanayake, who is not attending the Commonwealth conference and was represented by his justice minister, Senator A. F. Wijemanne. Discussion among the four invited was scheduled to begin today.

WILSON READY

At the opening of the Commonwealth conference earlier in the day, Wilson told leaders he was ready to fly himself to Hanoi, Peking and other key capitals to press for peace.

The move by the Commonwealth leaders was decided upon during a secret discussion of the Viet Nam crisis that lasted for more than four hours.

HE'S CONFIDENT

Wilson personally put the scheme up to his fellow leaders, and the word from his aides was that he is confident U.S. President Johnson will support it.

President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, prime ministers Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria and Eric Williams of Trinidad, and Senator A. F. Wijemanne of Ceylon — representing Wilson's four partners —

British Finding Prospects Dim

LONDON (CP) — Prospects of the five-nation Commonwealth having any success with the Communists in bringing about a Viet Nam crisis settlement were regarded as dim in official British circles Thursday night, the diplomatic correspondent of the British Press Association reported.

It was pointed out the governments of North Viet Nam, China and the Soviet Union so far have rebuffed all peace appeals, even from those non-aligned countries.

The mission—the idea for it came from Prime Minister Wilson—was given unanimous backing by the British House of Commons.

Speaking late Thursday night in the Commons, Wilson appealed to both sides in the war to show restraint while the mission is at work, hinting he would welcome a break in American bombing of the North.

All political groups, including the Labor Party's left-wing, applauded the mission. Wilson has been under heavy pressure from his party's rank-and-file to disassociate himself from U.S. policy.

Peace Bid Delights President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Thursday the cabinet will explore suggestions and hopes for peace in Viet Nam and declared "we are delighted" a British Commonwealth peace mission will visit the countries concerned.

The president also disclosed there have been at least two contacts with North Vietnamese which he said produced word that North Vietnamese have no intention of getting into peace negotiations.

He read parts of what he said was a confidential report and said he was going to declassify them on the spot.

LONDON (CP) — Canadian informants suggest the unprecedented five-country Commonwealth mission scheduled to set out next month to seek peace for Viet Nam is designed as a "shock treatment" to end the war.

It also will be a test of Commonwealth effectiveness. They said some of the 21 Commonwealth leaders meeting here called on Prime Minster Pearson to become one of the mission members. But Pearson declined, supporting Prime Minister Wilson as mission chairman, having in mind that one member of the Western Alliance in the mission is enough. Pearson was anxious the mission be well-balanced; that it represent the various elements of the Commonwealth in such a way that no one could suspect bias.

Only one injury was reported: a wrenched back, not believed to be serious. Which man was injured was not known. The Laymore was carrying about 200 tons of old explosives to be dumped at sea. She was under tow by the Clifton, because her engines were not usable.

She was about 35 miles southwest of Tofino at 4:15 p.m. Thursday when her steering failed. An hour later her towline snapped and she was helpless in the storm. The crew rode the heaving vessel for another hour before taking to a life raft. By midnight the ship had drifted approximately 10 miles to the south.

Names of the rescued men, all from Greater Victoria:

J. E. Francois, master; L. E. Walsh, N. Phillips, C. Davies, G. Jenkins, R. A. Barber, N. MacKinnon, R. Simpson, R. Butts, L. Parks, L. A. Morey, W. Billington, K. Tidbury, G. Childs, B. Moran, R. Wilson, B. Harford.

Whether the explosives in the Laymore's hold were dangerous had been a point of hot discussion several weeks ago. An unnamed informant then said the old depth charges and artillery shells contained crystallized charges that were extremely touchy. He said crewmen were terrified of going to sea with such a cargo.

But Capt. R. H. Chicken, technical officer of Pacific Command, at the time called the report "ridiculous."

"The explosive is all quite stable. If it were not, we would not be risking civilian lives to dispose of it. We would be using the explosive ordnance disposal group that makes its living looking after that sort of problem," he said.

The navy said the dumping operation was simple, providing normal care was taken by the crew.

A charge by the informant that the half-refitted vessel is not fit to go to sea was also rebutted by the navy. Capt. Chicken said the Laymore was halfway through a $180,000 refit to equip her for a new life as a scientific vessel with the Pacific Naval Laboratory.

Canadians said the question of whether the Viet Cong will be invited to participate in diplomatic negotiations on a Vietnamese settlement was not raised at Thursday's session of more than four hours.

British Push Money Plan To Save UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Britain led a drive Thursday to solve the paralyzing U.N. financial crisis by next week through voluntary contributions, with the United States dropping its demand that non-paying Russia forfeit its voting rights.

Some 25 countries were involved in the move to raise $20,000,000 as the base figure to solution of the political-financial situation that has frozen the General Assembly could be announced next weekend at San Francisco. Ceremonies marking the 20th anniversary of the signing of the U.N. charter will be held there.

Rebels Mount Attacks

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) —

Four Americans have been killed and 60 wounded in the past 48 hours in fighting started by Dominican Communists, U.S. sources said Thursday. Two American paratroopers were captured by the rebels.

Rebel presidential secretary Hector Arity said the paratroopers wandered into rebel territory when they took a wrong turn while carrying water in a truck to their unit. Arity said they may be returned today.

BRAZILIANS WOUNDED

Five Brazilian members of the Inter-American peacekeeping force have also been wounded in recent fighting. Casualties of the rebel side have been estimated as high as 70 dead and 200 wounded.

Inter-American troops also captured 280 prisoners who, according to a U.S. spokesman, will be freed "as soon as they learn how to behave themselves."

U.S. Army Commander Gen. Bruce W. Palmer told newsmen rebels had used tear gas against American troops Tuesday and Wednesday.

So Sorry, the General Is Not at Home Today

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Nguyen Khanh, once the military ruler of South Viet Nam, now rules a secluded household in this Long Island community.

STRICT SECRECY

Nobody violates his strictest rule—absolute secrecy. Inquiries made at the Khanh home bring this courteous reply:

"The general is not at home. I am sorry. We don't know when he will be back. He is in New York City with friends."

SELDOM SEEN

The general's house is a red brick mansion, hidden behind two giant trees. His lawn has become a playground for the neighborhood children.

Carrying the title of ambassador at large, Khanh has been here since March. He visited the United Nations shortly after his arrival but has not been seen there since.

DON'T CALL US At mid-week, late in the afternoon, Khanh's house appeared deserted. But the houseboy answered the knock promptly.

"Leave your telephone number and I will call you if the general desires to see you," the houseboy said in French. Khanh's four children frequently play outside but always under close supervision.

Plotters Sent To Jail

NEW YORK (CP) — Michelle Duclos of Montreal was given a five-year conditional sentence Thursday and three New York men received the maximum 10-year conditional terms for planning to blow up the Statue of Liberty and two other U.S. monuments.

Judge William Herlands imposed the sentence on the three men—Robert Collier, 28, Walter A. Bowe, 31, and Khaleel Sayed, 21, all Negroes—a couple of hours after Miss Duclos appeared separately before him for sentence.

Judge Herlands ordered that a complete study be made of the prisoners during a 90-day period and that they then be returned to court so that their sentences can be affirmed, reduced or suspended.

Aussies Battle Sukarno's Men

KUCHING, Sarawak (UPI) —

Australian troops battled more than 100 Indonesian infiltrators in a Borneo jungle clash near here Tuesday, killing 17 and wounding several others, it was announced Thursday.

It was the first time Indonesian and Australian forces have faced each other in actual combat since the Aussies arrived in this Malaysian state to help defend its borders.

A Royal Australian Army spokesman said the daylight battle involved three separate groups of Indonesians, one of which was cut down by an Australian ambush.

He said other Indonesian guerrillas were hit by artillery fire called in to support the infantry fighting.

Two Australians were slightly wounded.

The fighting took place in the border region of the Bau district about 40 miles southwest of Kuching.

Indonesian President Sukarno has maintained that his guerrilla force is made up of volunteers seeking to fight for Malaysian independence.

However, in Kuala Lumpur Thursday a captured Indonesian company commander said he and his band of infiltrators were all members of the Indonesian regular armed forces.

Two deaths were reported, and millions of dollars in property was damaged.

The South Platte, boiling with mud and debris, rolled toward an expected flood crest more moderate in northern Colorado than the terrifying water walls which ravaged Denver.

Fountain, Colo., where the tornado hit Thursday, is about 25 miles southeast of Palmer Lake, Colo., where twisters hit earlier. They touched off flooding on the South Platte in Denver which floated away house trailers, automobiles and even two-story buildings.

Two deaths were reported, and millions of dollars in property was damaged.

Toronto Four Cities?

TORONTO (UPI) — The Goldenberg Royal Commission report, made public Thursday, recommends the re-organization of Metropolitan Toronto into four cities.

Toronto would absorb York Township, East York, Forest Hill, Leaside and Swansea.

North York would take in Weston while Scarborough would become a city on its own. Etobicoke, adding Long Branch, New Toronto and Mimico, would be the fourth city.

IN TOP DORSEY

The four new cities would be in the top dozen in Canada as far as population goes.

Toronto would be the second biggest in the country with 900,513 while North York, with 351,891, would be the eighth. Scarborough, with 253,292, would be 10th and Etobicoke, with 238,685, would be the 11th.

The four new cities would remain as members of a more centrally powerful metro government.

The report was written by H. Carl Goldenberg, a 57-year-old Montreal lawyer who took two years to prepare it.

Not Better—Luckier

CANADIAN DRIVERS and pedestrians, by some appearances, put up a praiseworthy performance in the first quarter of this year.

According to figures just issued by the Canadian Highway Safety Council, the number of fatal accidents in that period increased by only three over the total for the first three months of the previous year—from 644 to 647. The number of persons who lost their lives in these accidents actually dropped by 1.5 per cent, from 781 to 769. Traffic injuries increased by only 3.3 per cent, from 26,077 to 26,942.

Considering the increase in the space of a year in the population, the cars on the road and the miles travelled, on the basis of these figures the country can congratulate itself.

But nevertheless there is something incongruous in the record. Though these comparative statistics indicate a commendable improvement, it also seems that the average accident was merely less serious in its consequences to human life and limb, for the safety council's tabulation also shows 15 per cent more accidents (at $5,678, or more than a thousand a day) than in the corresponding period of 1964, and 17.5 per cent more involving property damage.

The experts may in due course be able to explain this discrepancy. Perhaps for instance weather conditions were generally such as to promote slower driving on the whole and thus to take some of the death-dealing and bone-breaking impact out of collisions. Perhaps safety belts played a bigger part than in the past.

But without or even with such explanation, it must appear that the traffic habits of Canadians are about as bad as ever or a bit worse; that luck simply danced a little more attendance than usual on drivers—except, eyeing that property damage figure, with regard to insurance rates.

Beloved Tyrant

A CENTURY and a half have passed since that dreadful, but inspiring, day when Napoleon gambled and lost at Waterloo.

For Frenchmen it is a day of hateful memory for, tyrant though he was, Napoleon was revered, exalted to a point of adoration.

He seemed, on that morning of June 18, supremely confident. As his army prepared for the critical stage of the engagement after two days of skirmishing, he said to veteran Marshal Soult:

"Because you have been beaten by Wellington you think him a great general. Now I tell you that Wellington is a bad general and the English are bad troops."

So very confident! But why, one wonders, did he have conceded in his carriage before the battle zone a fortune in diamonds? Was he prepared for the eventuality of defeat?

That is of no moment. It has no bearing on history. But his apparent opinion of the British army's qualities may have had a very vital bearing on the outcome of the battle.

Perhaps he commenced to change his opinion when the Guards held Hougomont against repeated assaults of the French infantry, and when the Scots Greys rode, slashing with sabres, through his massed regiments and out into the plain beyond. "Scotland forever!" they chanted as they fought.

Perhaps he commenced to doubt his invincibility when Ney's gallant cavalry broke in bloody waves against the muskets and bayonets of the British squares.

In fact, despite their gallantry and all their experience in war, the French faced heavy odds that day.

Wellington was not alone. Blücher, with his Prussians, was there to avenge old defeats. The Dutch and Belgians, though in small number, were deployed in front of the British line, fearful of the cost of disaster. They had known the yoke too long. The allies numbered nearly 200,000 men. Napoleon marched with 128,000 veterans.

In the morning he was Emperor of France. By nightfall he was a fugitive. After his surrender to the Royal Navy at Rochefort he was a little, beaten man.

Yet his was the image of a martyr to his people. When they brought his ashes home from St. Helena it was for a hero's funeral. Inscribed in Les Invalides, where his magnificent sarcophagus lies, are the records of his victories, Marengo, Austerlitz and the rest, and even the defeat of Moscow. But not Waterloo!

When Wellington heard complaints that the French were doing their hero such great honor at his burial, the victor was not impressed.

"I don't care a tuppenny damn," he said, "what becomes of the ashes of Napoleon."

An Umpire Yet!

THE STORM RAISED over the Beatles being awarded the MBE in the Queen's birthday honors list last week appears to be increasing in intensity. A number of earlier recipients of the decoration—among them a former Canadian member of Parliament and a British war hero—have announced their intention of handing back their medals to the Queen because they now think it has become a worthless honor.

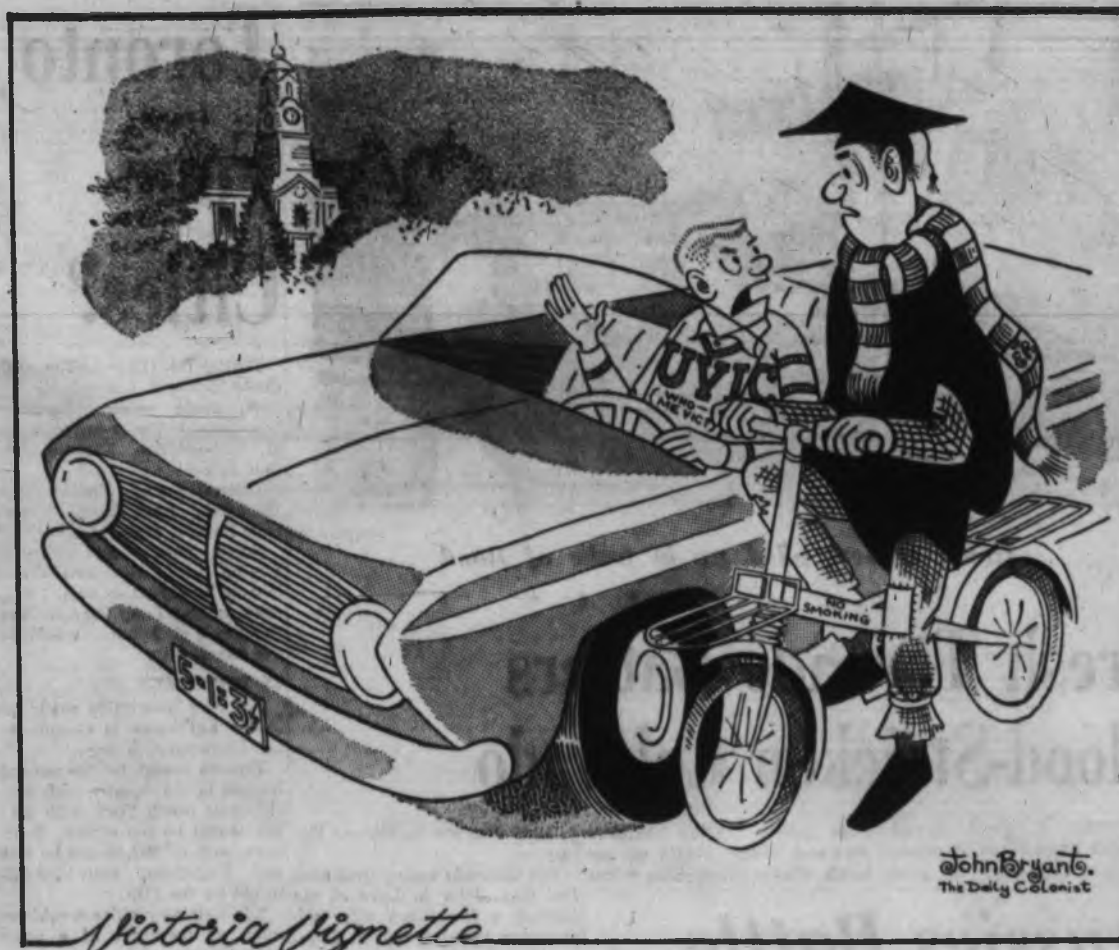

Hector Dupuis, the former member (L.—Montreal St. Marie) who received the MBE in 1945 for his work as director of selective service in Quebec, has returned his medal because "English royalty places me on the same level as vulgar nincompoops" while the war hero, a former RAF squadron leader, who received his award for commanding air-sea rescue operations in 1942, packed his medal off to Buckingham Palace "because it has become debased."

Though the Colonist is anything but an admirer of the type of musical art practised by the Beatles, it feels it only fair to point out once again that they were given the awards for their valuable contribution to Britain's export drive, having brought into their country a reported $10,000,000 worth of American and Canadian hard currency.

The value of their service to Britain at this critical time in her economic history cannot be underestimated. Certainly what they have done to promote the welfare of their homeland in such a tangible (though perhaps not particularly enjoyable to non-Beatles buffs) manner could well be considered to equal or even better the services rendered Britain by many others awarded similar honors in the same birthday list.

There, if one cares to check, one will find such people as actresses, theatre directors, a cricket correspondent for a London newspaper, a pop singer, a variety artist, a cricket umpire, two former secretaries of a former prime minister, and a weightlifter.

So why single out the Beatles for all the criticism?

"Frankly, sir, if they raise the fees much higher some of us students may have to come to university by bike, too."

and sailing war..."

By TOM TAYLOR

HOW soon things go to seed. Plans, for example, capable of going as far as 400 miles per hour.

Not as very long ago, you know, half that speed was marvellous to all who travelled at it.

Now a turbo-prop airplane is a slowpoke, and politicians even complain of "long" journeys to Ottawa which consume a mere few hours.

But the turbo-prop is old style, said U.S. aero engineers in reaction to the graceful aerodynamic plane which landed in Paris for an aviation show. They weren't impressed.

Mind you the Russians didn't exhibit any too much enthusiasm for the recent American space-walk, so things are even when it comes to graceful aerodynamicism of rival accomplishments.

A pity. The world would be better off if its chief protagonists weren't so reluctant to concede each other's merits when something unusual is produced.

Grudging admission doesn't dispose of the physical facts, you know.

And a plane capable of carrying 700-odd passengers at one swift isn't to be sneezed away, even if, lacking jet propulsion, it is old-fashioned.

The emphasis now, on this side of the iron curtain if not on the other one, is on super-speed. A thousand miles per hour or so; and this without a doubt in the commercial offing too.

Sometimes in my ignorance I wonder at this aerial travel business. The faster the plane the more patronage it attracts, no doubt, although on long trips what one does with the extra hour or two gained isn't, I feel sure, very beneficial.

But think of the vast cost of endlessly producing newer and faster aircraft models, which keep up the fare rates and thus, inevitably, keep down the passenger ratio. The lesson to be learned from charter flights, easily filled, seems to be ignored.

In a chaise between 400 miles per hour at half the cost, 1,000 miles an hour at double the cost I haven't much doubt what most aerial travellers would prefer.

And if planes were invariably filled to capacity surely that should be more satisfactory than half-filled aircraft even producing the same revenue.

But of course I know nothing of either the mechanics or on-eration of aircraft. When I sit in one I am but a passenger who, like many others, might be tempted to all more often were the price more right.

I don't know nevertheless that I fancy being one of 700-odd, I feel too much like a cypher, noised to fit into a machine. Not that it ever bothers me also—I'd strap-hang and take my own sandwiches if necessary, all other attendant circumstances being appropriate—but I wonder how they'd manage in a plane of this size to serve the meals.

Maybe they'd have to cut out some of them, not a bad idea actually, and perhaps Russian food comes in compressed packages.

But if a Soviet aircraft of the dimensions of the cargo plane on exhibit comes into service, it's a fair bet a U.S. plane of equal or larger size follows suit. Speed and size, the biggest and best, is the criterion of international rivalry.

However, 700-odd passengers in one plane would mean for our side of the curtain a whole platoon of air stewardesses. And they are usually a comely and comforting sight.

Source of Resentment

There were other, many, many other equally furious opinions.

Wonder if the prime minister has taken a survey of his B and B mail, or asked some of his MPs from other than Quebec how their taxpayers feel about it?

For if public opinion in the bilingual national capital just across the Ottawa River from Hull, Quebec, runs so explosively 15 to one against the B and B commission, what must it be like in the far-from-bilingual centres in other parts of the nation further removed from La Belle Province?

Why should the taxpayer be asked for the commission's dismemberment of their country?

Eighteen months after getting down to its highly controversial business, it issued an interim report, starting both French and English Canada, that never in the 50 years since Confederation had the nation been in such peril of disintegration.

Generalizing, Quebec has warned to the B and B commission while reaction in the other provinces has ranged all the way from indifference to hostility.

The commission has been attacked in Parliament by the Conservative Opposition which has demanded, in the name of national unity, that it be disbanded before it does any further damage to the federal fabric of our nationhood.

Oddly, Prime Minister Pearson has never mounted anything approaching a ringing defence of his embattled royal commission.

And the last time he was asked in the Commons whether he might put an end to it, he said little more than "no."

That the commission—racially and regionally weighted in favor of Quebec—should be praised in French Canada and either ignored or condemned in the rest of the country was not altogether surprising.

Where, then, could a fair assessment of opinion best be made? Where exactly, in a region small enough to be surveyed, was the population divided as it is on the national basis, with two English-speaking residents for every one French-speaking?

Ottawa, where else? The capital, one-third French-speaking, is the most truly bilingual centre in the land.

So what do they think in the national capital—the Ottawa-Hull-Rockcliffe-Eastview-Gloucester-Nepan metro area—of the B and B commission?

One of the newspapers, conducting a straight-down-the-middle survey, has just found out.

It asked, in a clipart coupon: "In my opinion (tick one): 'A: The B and B commission is a constructive study and should continue.' 'B: The B and B commission is stirring up trouble and should be discontinued.'"

The survey exploded with the impact of a bomb, and the startled newspaper, in a softly-worded story, reported briefly that it had gone 15 to one against the commission.

What was only vaguely hinted at was the depth of feeling, the resentment, anger and fear that boiled up in the survey.

Scores of those who responded weren't satisfied with merely marking their ballot for or against the commission, but scribbled in scorching condemnation of the B and B Boys.

Samples:

"Discontinue—too sweet."

"The English have lost their country politically and so far as to dumb or uncaring to know it."

"The B and B gang is a traitor's tool to sell us out to the French Republic."

"Nothing but a tax-paid invitation to subversion."

Canada and India

By HOWARD GREEN
Former Secretary of State for External Affairs

Important Friendship

THE visit to Canada of Prime Minister Shastri of India was of considerable significance. Originally his main reason for coming to North America was to exchange views with the president of the United States but Mr. Johnson had the visit cancelled—possibly because of Indian criticism of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Be that as it may Mr. Shastri went ahead with his planned visit to Canada and it should strengthen the friendship between his country and our own. The two nations have always been on very good terms and this relationship is important to both of them.

One reason is that they are working together on various peace-keeping operations. In this field they are the leading nations today. India has the largest contingent in the United Nations' Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip of Palestine and Canada the second. India also had the largest number of troops in the Congo operation while Canada was one of only three white nations represented. Both nations serve on various truth supervisory commissions, notably those in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia.

Whenever the call is made for participation in this kind of work India and Canada are likely to be among the first sought. Naturally enough they have many problems to discuss which arise in connection with peace-keeping.

Both are members of the 17-nations disarmament committee which meets at Geneva. They are in different groups, India being one of the eight unaligned countries and Canada one of the four NATO nations, yet they have been able to co-operate closely. I believe no two nations have worked harder to bring about a reduction in world tension.

This was of course the main objective of the late Prime Minister Nehru. His successor in following the same policy. For example Mr. Shastri has stated time and again that India will not become a nuclear power in spite of strong demands within his country that she do so because of Red China's bomb tests. He has stood firmly against such an enlargement of the nuclear club.

His views on other international questions have been equally moderate and he can be expected to urge moderation at the conference of Afro-Asian nations which opens in Algeria about the end of this month. He gives every indication of being a leader who can be relied upon for calm judgments.

At home he faces tremendous problems. Population is increasing at an alarming rate and while great progress has been made in developing the resources of the country the pace is not fast enough to meet the situation.

Canada has been doing what

Parental Control

ON May 15 you published a reasoned article of mine defending the view that the primary cause of juvenile disorder and crime lies in the abdication of parents from their duty to guide and control their children. This, as I pointed out, is not a popular opinion.

It was therefore with great interest that I read an article by Judge Rodney S. Eielson of Darien, Connecticut, whose position brings him into constant touch with juvenile criminals and their parents.

After relating some of his court experiences he sums up: "But I am sick and tired of punishing someone else's children in court. This has to be done at home. It's at home where the moral fibre of a young person is woven, and the process starts with the earliest years. By the time a teenager gets to my court, he is often beyond help. His character has been formed. And until we place the responsibility where it lies, with the parents, our country will continue to see a rising incidence among teen-agers of larceny and theft, reckless driving and intoxication, pregnancy among unwed high school girls, and other legal and moral crimes, including homosexual experimentation and the use of narcotics." (McCall's Magazine, January, 1965).

This is surely striking evidence from a highly informed and responsible source in support of the truth for which I was contending. Parents, please note.

Socialism

When William Shakespeare said, "He who owns the means whereby I live owns my very life," he actually pointed out the absence of real democracy and freedom in any class-divided social organization. Conversely, the implication arising out of this is that common or social ownership of the means of production and distribution by all the people means that society has democratic control of all its affairs.

When newspapers like the Colonist quote anti-socialist organization statements like "the socialist fallacy of an easy road to Utopia through government planning and the regimentation of citizens," or associate social-

Gas Rates

The only way to get a reduction in rates for gas, and to push for a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island, is to continue pressing the "powers that be," with persistence and vigor. Nothing comes from sitting back and accepting with resignation the status quo.

Pipelines are, of course, expensive, but not more costly than huge hydro-electric developments. If electric power is required, so is fuel for homes surrounding the industry that the power makes possible.

The efficiency, convenience, comfort and popularity of natural gas as fuel, is attested to by its almost universal use in many urban centres across the continent where other forms of fuel are also readily available.

Those wanting to get rates reduced are urged to sign the petition provided by Mr. Webb, or to write direct themselves, to the appropriate authority.

Better Teaching

Recently one of our B.C. university presidents has stated that better teaching is needed in the universities. This is quite evident to anyone who has been at all closely in touch with university students; in fact, the students would get more real educational value in many courses if the lectures were dispensed with and the students given carefully worked out mimeographed notes. Every university teacher should have at least a year's intensive training in teaching. Poor teaching is only one of the several difficulties in our universities, many of which are more important than money. Some of these are too much material in some courses, too much time required by the students in looking up references, too little specific training by administrators, such as heads of departments, deans and presidents, for their positions.

School principals should have an MA in education and principals in the larger schools and superintendents of schools should be required to hold a doctor's degree in education. The application of this idea to university administrators should be evident.

The president has stated that there should be higher standards. He might add that there should be some standard in grading students in the university. At present, this varies so much from one course to another that it would not be far from the truth to say that no standard exists.

Finally, all too many of the university professors look down on teaching and want to be researchers or write a book.

Piper in Early Victoria

By CEARL CLARK

A Link with Waterloo

TODAY, because it's a rather special day, let's extend hands across the sea to the historic Black Watch Museum in Scotland's royal and ancient borough of Perth. For the occasion let's toss in a historical anecdote, about a piper.

Just over a hundred years ago, in the fall of 1861 (and not long after Victoria's palisaded fort gave way to town planning), a gaunt, white-bearded giant of a man, a California miner, could have been seen among the new arrivals tramping the muddy trail from the Esquimalt boat landing. Like the horde that pressed along with him he was headed for Eldorado—the canyons of the Fraser.

The wanderer's name was Campbell, and strapped to the top of his pack was his most prized possession—his bagpipes. Prized because they bore a silver plate that signified they were the gift from the officers of a famous Highland regiment, a gift conferred in by no less a person than the Duke of Wellington.

In his stopover in Victoria that winter, piper Campbell joined the St. Andrew's Society and, just as he made the hills and valleys of California ring to the music of his pipes, here too he displayed his virtuosity. In fact on one occasion he and a few cronies serenaded the honorary president of the society at one in the morning. Where this took place crab shovels are today excavating for the new museum. For the honorary president was James Douglas.

Though he must have been close to 70, Campbell was bound to try his luck on the Fraser. Then one day in the spring of 1862 came tragedy. A partial stroke paralysed his left side. They brought him back to Victoria where famed Dr. Tolmie put him in hospital. Now it was plain to see, as the Colonist reported, "his intellect seemed to be deformed."

Trouble was, old Campbell wouldn't stay in hospital. He was forever wandering about, turning up on Johnson Street or Waddington Alley, barely knowing who or where he was.

Finally, a month or two later, his wayward steps took him out to the back of Esquimalt Harbour, to "Belmont," home of Chief Justice Cameron. There, kindly hands made him comfortable for the night, but in the morning there was a vacant bed. After an unsuccessful search of the adjacent woods, the St. Andrew's Society posted a reward. It wasn't till six months later that a hunter came upon his remains. Deep in the woods there was clear indication that the old man had fallen victim to prowling wolves.

Thus death came to Piper Major Thomas Fraser Campbell, the last Waterloo veteran that Victorians were likely to see. For it was on that battlefield, nearly half a century before that Campbell's score of musket balls and cavalry lances to skirt "Hey, Johnny Cope, are ye waukin' yet?" to remind a solid packed square of scarlet and kilts that they were their Highland heritage. For 150 years their story has been told and retold.

It's told today because this is the anniversary of that nine hours of savage hand to hand fighting that ended with 50,000 dead and dying on a few square miles of Belgian soil. In the evening Napoleon was in flight, and Europe breathed more freely.

There's many a British regiment with "Waterloo" stitched in its colors, but none have prouder memories than the Black Watch. When they raise their glasses this evening to "Fallen comrades" no doubt the ghost of Piper-Major Thomas Fraser Campbell will be present.

Odorless Pulp Mills Japanese Trump Card

By IAN STREET

The smell of success in B.C.'s pulp and paper industry is far from sweet.

With hundreds of millions worth of new investment in pulp mills throughout the province the odors of the kraft process will shortly blanket a good portion of the populated area of the province.

No wonder then that on a foggy and windless day on Japan's north island of Hokkaido the minister in charge of B.C.'s resources, Ray Williston, found his nose twitching.

What had set his nose a-twitch was, quite literally, the smell that wasn't there.

Mr. Williston views his cabinet post as that of "resource manager" for the people of B.C. He makes no claim to any technical knowledge. He merely sets out to get the greatest possible return for the province's resources without unnecessarily depleting them for the future.

The main reason for his visit to the Kushiro mill during his recent Japan tour was the fact that Honshu Pulp and Paper Co., which operates the mill, is a partner in a proposed East Kootenay venture.

The B.C. party which includes Trade Minister Lofmark and others had been inspecting the Japanese mill for four hours when Mr. Williston made his discovery. The only odor was a faint and pleasant wood smell.

Several months ago, when public hearings were held in the Kootenays, representatives of the Japanese company had told the minister, in quite matter of fact terms, that odor from their mill would cause no problems for local resort operators.

Mr. Williston, possibly with some scepticism, because pulp mill odor is a fact of B.C. life, thought no more of it. All the publicity since the return of the Japan mission has set off a similar sceptical reaction from the pulp and paper industry in B.C.

Industry spokesmen argue that the sort of technical breakthrough that would be involved in removing all odors from the kraft process couldn't be kept secret.

Their companies pour tens of thousands of dollars each year into the B.C. Research Council in an effort to beat the problem here. Nothing approaching complete odor control has been attained here.

It's quite possible, however, that the Japanese put not tens but hundreds of thousands of dollars into research and their efforts have apparently been successful.

CAPITAL REPORT

B.C. industry might wish to shrug off this achievement and pretend it hasn't happened but obviously the minister isn't going to forget.

Mr. Williston reported to cabinet on his return then lost no time in announcing that specifications for the proposed new 1,155-ton per day pulp mill at Canal Flats in the East Kootenays would be changed.

There is to be much stricter odor control and—another Japanese innovation—more use of hardwoods which now are wasted here in B.C.

This would seem to have the effect of tipping the scales in favor of the Japanese backed Canal Development. After all, it has the odor control process which isn't likely to be lent to competitors, and Japan now uses 100 per cent hardwoods in some pulp and up to 75 per cent in liner boards.

But Mr. Williston steadfastly maintains that his job is to see that B.C. resources are used to the fullest possible extent.

He estimates that by using all available hardwoods, mostly in the interior of the province, the annual forest harvest of B.C. could be tripled.

On the coast, odor control holds the biggest promise. What a boon that would be to the residents of the Alberni and other island pulp centres.

Greek Cypriots Want UN to Stay

By KENNETH MACKENZIE, from Nicosia, Cyprus

The first reaction in Cyprus to U Thant's proposal to extend the United Nations mandate in the island by six months has been fairly favorable. It is widely assumed here that the security council will endorse the secretary-general's recommendation and that UN troops will now stay until the end of the year.

Two months ago such a proposal would have provoked the wrath of Greek Cypriots, on the ground that the presence of United Nations troops represented an infringement of the Cyprus government's sovereignty. In April President Makarios himself declared that he wanted the United Nations force reduced by half, while the Greek press clamored for a complete withdrawal.

A factor which has largely changed the situation has been the NATO-inspired "dialogue" between the governments of Greece and Turkey. The Makarios government, obsessed with the fear that their country's fate was being "fixed" behind their back, is now more insistent than ever that the Cyprus question be brought back within the framework of the United Nations.

They are therefore much more ready to accept the continuation of the United Nations peace-keeping mandate than they were a few months ago.

Also, countless Greek Cypriot traders—especially shopkeepers, hoteliers, restaurateurs, and night club owners—privately relish the prospect of the United Nations troops remaining until the end of the year, for the troops have to some extent taken the place of the tourists.

Although the island remains quiet, political observers here agree with the secretary-general's verdict that, without the UN force, fighting would break out again. In some areas tension has relaxed—but on fundamental issues there has been no real progress.

Within the Greek community bitter controversy rages between those who want ENOSIS (union with Greece) and those who prefer independence. But for the moment both factions are united in their opposition to the Athens talks.

Many observers are convinced that, even if some compromise formula eventually emerges from these discussions, President Makarios will veto it—and that then there will be a head-on collision with the Turks.

Break-ins Netted $500

Crime Spree Confessed
By Youth, 16

A 16-year-old Esquimalt youth, who stole almost $500 in six months, pleaded guilty to 24 counts of breaking and entering in city magistrate's court Thursday.

James Brooks, of 230 Rock-heights, was remanded to June 25 for pre-sentence report after the lengthy list of offences was read out.

In a number of the break-ins he left empty-handed. He admitted stealing a total of $488, including $340 from Scott's Fine Foods, 650 Yates, on four different occasions.

Brooks also admitted taking two cartons of cigarettes, four decks of cards, a transistor radio, an electric razor and cigarette lighter. The break-ins were mainly committed in the 600 and 700 blocks of Yates and Fort Streets.

Detective Lester Clark described how Scott's Fine Foods was robbed of $350 on June 7. A window was smashed to gain entry, after which the cash drawer was pried open, yielding nothing. A filing cabinet was then forced and the money was found.

LOOT MISSING
None of the loot had been recovered from the crimes.

Detective Clark said the mode of operation was similar in all the burglaries. In that a window or door was forced to gain entry.

Brooks was not discriminatory in his choice of targets, and once attempted to burglarize a private detective agency. But nothing was taken from the National Investigation Agency, 625 Fort.

Bad Cheques

Claude C. Nichols, 208 Shelbourne, pleaded guilty to four counts of false pretences in city magistrate's court Thursday.

He drew worthless cheques against Dunsmuir Super Service for the following amounts during May: $75, $10, $40 and $20.

Nichols, who had been employed by the firm up to May 19, said he had suffered amnesia, and the money was made up by his wife.

He was remanded to June 25.

Kenneth E. Little, 2218 Sayward, was fined $300 and received a four-month suspension of his driving licence after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He also pleaded guilty to not possessing a driver's licence, and was fined $25.

Both charges arose from incidents at 1 a.m. Thursday when his car was observed weaving on Colville Road.

Court was told he had a blood alcohol content of .19 per cent.

Colin McLean, 1120 Rock, chose 10 days in jail in preference to a $200 fine after he pleaded guilty to failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Court was told he left the scene after an accident on Quadra near Pandora at 11:30 a.m. May 26. There was $35 total damage.

George Barber, 3336 Shelbourne, was fined $35 after he pleaded guilty to careless driving as a result of an accident June 3 on Bay near Douglas. It was a rear-end collision.

John Zaccarelli, 940 Craigflower, was fined $40 on a similar charge as a result of a rear-end collision at Douglas and Garbally on the same day.

In Saanich court, a $100 fine was levied against Frederick McOrmond, no fixed address, and in addition he was placed on $250 bond to be of good behavior for six months.

He had pleaded guilty to prowling by night after he was found in a Saanich field.

Six youths were each fined $20 after they pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of liquor.

They were Victor Weber, 30, of 830 Empress; Ronald G. Smith, 14, of 811 McKensie; David Butler, of 604 Craigflower; Ted Dillion, 18, of 835 Princess; Norman Fieldhouse, 18, of 128 Crease, and Vern Black, of 3720 Press.

All the offences involved beer.

Two drivers who were found racing on the Town and Country parking lot June 2 were fined $45 each after they pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Jose Brun, 2538 Asquith, who was in a car, and Victor G.

blocks of Yates and Fort Streets.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A search that began late Thursday for a private American plane with three persons aboard ended almost as quickly as it began.

The plane, on a flight from Chilliwack to Williams Lake, landed at the Cariboo town about 6 p.m. It had been due in the town at 11:30 a.m. No reason was given for the delay.

Aid Scheme Here Soon?

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP)—It is only a matter of time until British Columbia has a fully comprehensive scheme of legal aid, the chairman of a law committee said Thursday.

Studies are now being conducted to determine the best possible plan for the profession and the public, T. E. H. Ellis of Vancouver said in his annual report to the B.C. Law Society meeting here. "It is certain that a fully comprehensive legal aid plan will be provided."

Mr. Ellis is chairman of the society's legal aid committee.

In his report, Mr. Ellis said the criminal justice committee of the B.C. section of the Canadian Bar Association has produced an outline of a legal aid scheme for criminal cases.

He said this plan is under consideration by the society's branches, and a civil justice committee will bring forth a plan on legal aid in civil matters.

CANT BURN

"When the studies are completed, it will be the task of future legal aid committees and the bar to decide which plan or combination of plans is correct for implementation in B.C.," he said. "It is important that it be done upon a proper basis and for this reason it cannot be rushed."

He said 704 persons seeking legal aid in B.C. in the past year were referred to solicitors. Another 423 persons were refused aid.

In another report delivered to the society's annual meeting today, lawyers were criticized for failing to explain the fees they charge to their clients.

Paul Paine of Vancouver, chairman of the discipline committee, said this is one of several complaints clients make against lawyers.

The committee investigates complaints made to the Law Society and recommends lawyers where required.

SEEK EXPLANATION

"When fees are charged without sufficient explanation, telephone messages ignored, letters left unanswered or delays unexplained, the client has no place to turn other than the Law Society," Mr. Paine said.

He said the solicitor is then required to give the committee the explanation which could have been given much more easily to the client in the first instance.

BBC Learns:

Lawsuit Threat For CJOR

OTTAWA (CP)—A threat of court action unless steps are taken to ensure a new majority ownership of radio station CJOR Vancouver was made before the Board of Broadcast Governors Thursday.

The threat came from Gowen Quest, counsel for three persons who own 48 per cent of the station's shares. His clients oppose an application to the board for a share transfer involving the current majority shareholder, Mrs. Marie Chandler.

Mr. Quest represents Arthur R. Chandler, Marie Rolston and Ethelene Strain. Arthur Chandler is the brother of Mrs. Marie Chandler's late husband. The other two minority shareholders are his sisters.

The lawyer said a ruling by the BBC last April recommending that no new license be allowed for CJOR because of a lack of management control over station operations was proper under the circumstances.

No type of hybrid management based on the ownership at that date should be allowed to continue to operate the station, he said.

The proposal before the BBC Thursday would transfer enough of Mrs. Marie Chandler's shares to Vancouver lawyer L. A. Williams to take her out of majority control.

Mr. Quest said arrangements should be made for at least 51 per cent of the company's shares to be turned over to someone entirely divorced from the present owners.

Unless such provisions were made, his clients would initiate court action "if necessary" to wind up the company.

The hearing is continuing.

Jury Demands Copter Safety

SMITHERS (CP)—A coroner's jury here recommended Wednesday that trained personnel should direct helicopter unloading cargo and persons on the ground should be properly instructed in safety precautions for such operations.

The jury ruled that Lloyd Steel, of Willowdale, Ont., died accidentally when the whirling rotor of a crashing helicopter cut him in half June 8 on Hudson Bay Mountain, six miles northwest of here.

(COPENHAGEN (Reuters))—

The newspaper B.T. Thursday claimed a world record for a Danish woman who needed 795 hours of instruction to pass her driving test. Lessons to drive cost her 5,000 kroner ($700). He did not name them.

HELSINKI (Reuters)—An American doctor said Thursday a synthetic tube he grafted into a dog has turned into a partly living structure.

Dr. B. A. Warren of Chicago told the third congress of the International College of Surgeons that he substituted a dacron tube for the aorta, the arterial trunk that carries blood from the heart.

Six weeks later, he examined

Dog's Tube Graft Comes Partly Alive

the graft, and the dacron was partly living structure, not just synthetic fabric.

Three main layers of cells were visible. The innermost was similar to that of normal human vessels. Under it was a layer of fibrotic and muscle cells. The deepest layer consisted of dense bundles of collagen fibers, a protein in fibrous connective tissue.

Dr. Warren said an extremely interesting finding was small vessels communicating through the dacron to supply the inner cell layers.

Old Railwaymen Still Rolling

By IAN SMITH

Old railwaymen never die... and they don't fade away, either.

They take cross-Canada trips as members of the Canadian Pacific Railway Pioneers.

A group of 78 retired CPR men and wives rolled into the Empress Hotel Wednesday, and you could almost see the engine smoke as the discussions got going.

They will leave Saturday for Nanaimo before starting the long trip back east.

Engineers, agents, track maintenance men, investigators: they all had their times on the old CPR.

"I think times were better then," said M. L. Marshall of Midland, N.B.

He was a maintenance man on track throughout Nova Scotia for 45 years before he retired last October, "and sometimes it was pretty hard, but it was fun, too."

Mr. Marshall recalled snow drifts 12 feet deep that he cleared to keep the tracks open during 1923 and 1924.

"Those were the years of the big snows," he recalled. "We had to work night and day to keep the trains rolling."

But things could have been worse.

"Well, I never had a train wreck," he smiled.

For L. A. Mersereau of McAdam, N.B., the most interesting thing about railroading was the march of history.

"When I started we just had the old-type steam engine," he said, "and now they're running diesels."

"And the progress in communications. Fantastic."

He also recalled the progress in working conditions.

"When I started, we worked

12 hours a day, seven days a week," he said. "We got tired... and the pay was only a third what it is today."

But he has no regrets, and feels that the company treated him well. "They treated us wonderfully, all in all," he commented, "especially the men who were in the First World War."

James Goss of Kempenfelt, Ont., said he served as an agent—"and that means you do everything nobody else will do." But he stayed with the CPR 32 years before he retired in 1939, and he has no regrets. "I've no complaints," he said.

And then there was Frank Parmelee, of Pointe Claire, Que., who claims to be the last man to work exclusively on steam locomotives.

"I retired in 1959," he reminisced, "and never put a wrench on diesel." He was a mechanic in the Montreal area for 40 years.

"It's quite a thing, repairing locomotives," he said. "You work with bolts and overhead cranes. They're big."

No Warnings Sounded Before Crash

Two ships involved in a collision near Brookton Island earlier this year sighted each other before the accident, but neither transmitted warning signals, a Victoria court of inquiry heard Thursday.

The collision occurred in Qualicum Sound just before midnight Feb. 25, between the 330-ton oil tanker Tye Shell of Vancouver and the 500-ton barge Island Express of Victoria, which was being pushed as a tow by the tug Island Commander.

All vessels remained aloft after the collision, but the cook aboard the Tye Shell died as a result of it.

Both the tug's captain and the tanker's helmsman testified Thursday at the inquiry being held in the Law Courts that neither vessel had sounded warning signals or made radio contact with the other before the collision.

Capt. Einar Elkanger, 61, the tug's skipper, testified the tanker's approach had been observed aboard his vessel both visually and on the radar screen.

He said he made no sound signals between the time of leaving port and the collision. Nor had he tried to radio the tanker.

It was about 15 or 20 minutes after the collision that he received his first radio signal from the Tye Shell, he said.

Seaman Raymond Price of Vancouver, who was at the wheel of the tanker, said he had been ordered to alter course about a minute or so after the tug and barge had been sighted.

Mr. Price said he had seen warning lights and the tug's searchlight, but the barge showed no side lights.

The tanker had made no sound signals before the collision, nor had she radioed the tug, he said.

About a minute before the collision, he was ordered to turn the wheel hard to starboard. The Tye Shell was a well-stored ship, he added.

The inquiry continues today.

Bridges Planned

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Highway Minister Gagliardi said Thursday he has approved plans for two new bridges and a freeway on the lower mainland.

They include the design of a $20,000,000 Fraser River bridge at Mission City, a $10,000,000 new Fraser Street bridge in Vancouver and $15,000,000 freeway on Vancouver's North Shore.

Tenders for all three projects are expected to be called by next spring, Mr. Gagliardi said.

Diefenbaker Tries For Island Salmon

OTTAWA (CP)—Veteran campaigner John Diefenbaker leaves here today to rally his western Progressive Conservatives but the gleam in his eye is only partly political.

STEELEHEAD TRY

Besides speaking to party faithful at several meetings during his five-day western tour, the Opposition leader will be trying to satisfy a long-standing ambition—to catch one of British Columbia's battling steelhead trout.

The steelhead eluded the 68-year-old former prime minister on one trip more than a year ago which was filmed as part of a documentary for television called The Chief.

CAMPBELL RIVER STOP

Mr. Diefenbaker plans to squeeze a couple of days' fishing at Campbell River between speaking engagements in Saskatchewan and B.C.

He is scheduled to address a nominating convention tonight at Weyburn, Sask., in the Assiniboia constituency held by Conservative Lawrence Watson since the 1963 election.

After that it's off to the trout and salmon streams of the Campbell River area, where the steelhead will be making their summer migration.

BIG MARLIN

Next to politics, sports fishing is probably Mr. Diefenbaker's biggest interest. He's fished most Canadian waters, the Atlantic off the West Indies and, during a world tour as prime minister, streams in New Zealand.

He's proud of a big marlin which he landed on light tackle

The Anglican Church committee wants a large, old house, not too far from the city, to establish a home for eight emotionally-disturbed boys who cannot be looked after in their own or foster homes.

New Westminster Already Rebuilt

all sorts of rebuilding problems this season, New Westminster O'Keefe's are doing rather well. They got back into a first place in the Inter-City League with their 11th win in 12 starts last night, beating Coquitlam 13-10.

And they still hold one game in hand over Vancouver Carlings, who share the lead.

Once again it was the combination of Paul Farnell and Cliff Sepka that sparked the New Westminster drive, scoring three goals each.

Don Wallsmith and Mac Tyler, two young players who have helped make up for the loss of Jack Blonda and Jack Barclay, added two goals apiece.

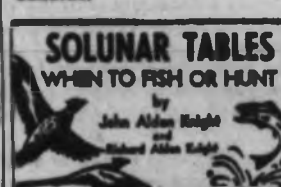

Dick Crompton was almost the whole show for Adams. Crompton, who had scored only four times prior to last night's game, doubled his total with four more goals.

Adams dressed only 14 players, two below the limit. The clubs play again Saturday in Coquitlam.

University Sports Plan Just Lacking Money

By GUY STANLEY

A complete physical education course, and with it an improved athletics situation, is not far away for the University of Victoria. All that's holding things back is the lack of money.

The university administration took the first step towards the development of athletics recently when it approved in principle the offering of senior year physical education courses. The administration also has created the new position of athletics co-ordinator, and what's more, has filled it.

Robert Bell, 28, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, now at University of Oregon working on his doctorate in physical education, has been chosen to fill the new athletics co-ordinator role, in addition to handling a light teaching load.

CANADIAN CHAMPS
Last year, only a girls' basketball team, the hockey team and rugby team took part in Victoria and district leagues with other teams playing exhibitions in other sports. The Vikings won the Canadian junior girls basketball title and the hockey team won the Esquimalt League but lost in the playoffs.

The eventual goal, perhaps by 1968, will see a complete physical education program and the expansion of the sports program so that major sports will have representative teams in a Pacific Northwest Conference.

Dean Henry Gilliland of the faculty of education hopes to have the physical education course going full swing by 1967-68. Because physical education students will be encouraged to play on university teams, a parallel expansion of the sports program is necessary. That's where the athletics co-ordinator comes in.

At present the university offers only the first two years towards a physical education degree. Students are urged to finish off at UBC.

EXTRA BEFORE

"Before, sports were considered an extra," said Dean Gilliland. "Now we have a faculty member who is excused some of his teaching to help with the co-ordination of all sports."

"The new post will make for the smoother operation of athletics and provide for full-time co-ordination of sports at the university, both intra and extra-mural," said Prof. Alfred Loft, chairman of the six-man athletic board which sets athletic policy at the university.

NEW COURTS

The increased load of the new phys-ed program is also expected to increase pressures on present sports facilities. To help meet the bigger load, four new tennis courts are being built on the Gordon Head campus at a cost of $15,000. They will be ready next week.

Also slated for construction some time in the future are extra gym space and perhaps a swimming pool. But officials are reluctant about setting definite target dates for these projects.

"Operating budgets are never as big as we need and the academic program takes precedence," said Dean Gilliland.

SET BY SET

"The University of Victoria should accept the responsibility of training teachers in this field as it does in other fields," said the dean.

"Our surveys indicate there are 700 teachers teaching physical education in B.C. schools without proper qualifications," he concluded.

To make life even more complicated for Schwindel, catcher Tim McCarver has been fined $100 and suspended two games by the league for his part in an argument Wednesday with umpire Ed Varga, and relief pitcher Barney Schultz must fork over $50.

Schultz allegedly threw at Pittsburgh's Don Clendenon as Cards went on to lose, 10-0. Schultz was warned, McCarver protested, and Varga threw him out.

The Yankees were also having their troubles, going 16 innings to lose 2-1 to Baltimore Orioles. Pinch-hitter Bob Johnson scored Russ Snyder with a sacrifice fly in the 16th. Snyder had singled and gone to third when catcher Don Edwards threw Luis Aparicio's bunt into centre field.

Hal Remitt, fourth Yankee pitcher, purposely walked Boog Powell, then got Brooks Robinson to foul for the first out. Johnson, batting for Paul Blair, raised a short fly to left field and Snyder slid home to beat Versailles.

Tom Tresh's throw to the plate with the winning run. Minnesota Twins, still winning the big case, lengthened their American League lead to 1 1/2 games over Chicago, beating the White Sox 3-1 on Jim Kaat's four-hitter.

Twins, who have won seven of 11 games with second-place Chicago this season, got homers from Don Mincher and Zoilo Versalles.

New Zealand Battles Back

LONDON (Reuters)—New Zealand fought back strongly after losing six wickets for 62 runs on the first day of the second cricket test against England at Lord's Thursday.

The recovery was led by 19-year-old Vis Pollard, who added 52 with Bruce Taylor for the seventh wicket and enabled New Zealand to make a respectable 175 in its first innings.

Then New Zealand struck two quick blows, sending back both the England openers for 38. At the close England, one up in the three-test series, was 72 for two.

Pollard, who made 51 not out in the first test, quickly brought some stability to New Zealand's innings after the early disasters. He batted three hours, five minutes for 55. Taylor was at the wicket exactly two hours for 51.

The salmon are on the move and saltwater fishing is getting better and better everywhere.

Last weekend top spot anywhere in the Gulf of Georgia was the Nanaimo to Nanaimo area where in the Five Fingers, Snake Islands and north to Nanaimo Bay 50 boats checked Sunday talked two springs, five jacks and 70 coho.

Second best spot was the Discovery Passage area at Campbell River where springs are picking up and coho are in abundance.

A very large body of coho sighted in upper Discovery Passage early this spring could, if they move south, produce excellent fishing in the Campbell River area this summer.

Coho have already moved up the east coast providing pretty good fishing all the way from Chetumal to Campbell River.

Now the Saanich Inlet schools of coho, just reaching the King Fishermen five-pound qualifying weight, are on the move. There has been plenty of activity on small coho at the top end of the Inlet, off Deep Cove, Mill Bay and Hatch Point. Coho are showing in Satellite Channel, off Arbutus Point and Salt Spring Island. Small coho are now being taken by casting from Saanichton Spit and off the powder wharf on the far side of James Island.

It looks like the migration is on around the southern tip of the Island. They should be at Oak Bay soon. Patterns in other years indicate they migrate into the Victoria area and sometimes as far as Sooke waters by July and early August, but indications are they don't go much further and sometimes they don't reach past Victoria waters.

The hefty springs are now showing in small, but over-increasing, numbers in Oak Bay to Sooke waters.

Because there are so many $1 a year putter fishermen in these waters it is hard to get an accurate estimate of the catch.

These putter fishermen have been doing pretty well with fish in the 15 to nearly 40-pound bracket off Becher Bay, Secretary Island, Otter Point and Oak Bay and the few sports fishermen who have been out have picked up their share.

Last year's Campbell Angler Sid Upton picked up a 43-pounder in Becher Bay waters Wednesday.

Tuesday Dave Macereth did something just about every angler in the area might do some day. He hooked a killer whale while fishing off Becher Head and had it on for 20 minutes before he was able to cut his wire line.

It surfaced about 20 feet from the boat and floated quietly on the surface while another cow and a calf surfaced nearby. It is the first time we have heard of a stranded killer whale being hooked.

Max Rudiger reports weighing-in the first pink (humpback) from Sooke waters. It seems early, but as the big run this year is expected to be heading for Howe Sound-Praser River waters it may be early. Those fish provided the early fishing of 1963.

Northwest Bay, French Creek, Qualicum, Qualicum Bay and Deep Bay are all reporting pretty good coho fishing.

It is nearing the end of the best small lake fishing although almost any lake is still a good bet. Big lakes like Cowichan, Spruce, Great Central, Lower and Upper Campbell and Butte are just now coming into their best period.

On June 25 there will be a trout derby from Cayuse Camp on Cowichan Lake with fishing anywhere on the lake, but weigh-in at Cayuse. Pete Edwards of Cedar Resort reports fishing good anywhere on Cowichan Lake now.

There is pretty good fly fishing at the top end of Cowichan River. Summer steelhead are in Money's Pool on the Stamp.

This is the best time for bass fishing in Elk Lake, Beaver Lake, Prospect Lake, Langford Lake, St. Mary Lake, Quennell Lake and Spider Lake.

Monday's meeting of the Victoria Fish and Game Club at the Goldstream Clubhouse at 8 p.m. Monday will feature 20 minutes of movies of the Marchmont's King Fishermen trip to New Zealand.

Young Russell and his father, Angus, will be on hand to describe the trip.

The fish and game club welcome visitors whether or not they are members... and this could be the right time to take out a membership in appreciation of the work the club does for you—access to hunting and fishing areas, building of the Cowichan River anglers' footpath, building of dams at Glen Lake and Little Thetis Lake, instruction of youngsters and elders in firearms safety, instruction to tyros on fishing methods and fly tying, through its membership in the Amalgamated Conservation Society, establishment of a sports salmon fishing advisory committee, reduction in commercial netting and other salmon conservation measures, to mention a few current achievements.

May Not Survive U.S. Open Cut

Palmer, Nicklaus Sky High

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Kel Nagle, a 44-year-old Australian, slammed into the lead with a two-under-par 68 Thursday and the roof fell in on Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Ken Venturi in the opening round of the National Open golf championship.

Nicklaus blew himself to a pair of two-over-par 64 and staggered in with a 78.

Palmer, the one-time king of the pros, did little better. Showing none of his old charging spirit, he limped home with a 76.

The miracle dream also collapsed for Venturi, the defending champion who won in Washington's sweltering heat a year ago and later turned up with a tragic hand ailment.

His right hand almost useless, Venturi soared nine over par through the 15th. He finished with an 81.

WILL HAVE STRUGGLE

All three will have to struggle to survive the traditional half-way cut when the field will be reduced today from 158 to the low 50 and ties.

Two other favorites, Sam Snead, making his 25th bid at the age of 63, shot a 75. British Open champion Tony Lewa had a 72.

Canada's George Knudson had 80.

AMATEUR SECOND

Nagle's iron play gave him a cluster of birdies on the incoming rise for a 35-33-68 and a one-stroke edge over amateur Deane Berman of Bethesda, Md., and Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn.

Robert Panastuk of Windsor, Ont., shot a 65-68-85 round Thursday.

Gary Player of South Africa, who has captured every major title except this one, became a stern foreign threat when he posted an almost flawless 70 and tied at that spot with Al Geiberger, Rex Baxter and little-known Lou Graham.

STRONG WINDS

It was a day of frustration for most of the select field, butting heads with Bellerive's exasperating 7,191 yards, the big, rolling greens and gusty north-easterly winds.

Four well-known players—former PGA champion Jim Ferrier, Bert Weaver, Terry

Dill and amateur Billy Joe Patton—withdraw.

Former open champion Ed Furgot used 39 putts in shooting an 80. Mike Souchak shot 78.

Venturi, stricken with a circulatory ailment in his right hand a few months after his dramatic victory in Washington, had no feeling in his hand.

Nagle, a bull-shouldered old campaigner who beat Palmer out of the British Open championship at St. Andrews in 1960. He won the Canadian Open last year, the Australian Open before that.

Swift Reaction To Grid 'Insult'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Lions announced Thursday the signing of Montreal-born fullback Bob Swift, 21, to a three-year contract with the Western Football Conference club.

Swift had said Tuesday he would leave the club unless he got a better contract. He said then he felt insulted with the offer of a $300 raise over what he got last year as a rookie.

Terms of the new contract were not disclosed.

Swift led the league in touchdowns rushing with 11 and his 66 points gave him third spot in WFC scoring during the 1964 season.

Regina Bout For Chuvalo

REGINA (CP) — George Chuvalo of Toronto, third ranked among world heavyweight fighters, has signed to meet Dave Bailey of Philadelphia in a 12-round bout June 30 at Regina, promoter Nick Zubray said Tuesday night.

Chuvalo, who won his Canadian heavyweight title in March, 1964 in Regina with a one-round knockout of Hugh Merdier of Regina, was guaranteed $7,500 for the fight, said Zubray.

champion twice previously, took over the lead Thursday in the second round of the 1965 championships.

Hevenor finished the 18-hole round with a two-over-par 74 for a two-day total of 150.

He was in a three-way tie for third place Wednesday with a 76.

Monty Hill of Vancouver, Wednesday's leader with a one-over-par 73, went to pieces Thursday and finished with an 85.

ace on the 136-yard, par-three 14th hole. Demers, a serious golfer for about seven years and playing in his first major tournament, used a seven iron for the shot.

Hevenor, Seniors' champion in 1962—the first year of the championship — and winner again last year, managed to straighten out the drive that was giving him trouble Wednesday.

But it was near the greens that he shone Thursday.

On the 13th hole, he used a plutter on an apron shot and put the ball cleanly in the hole from 20 feet out. Had the ball missed the hole, it probably would have run off the sloping green.

On the 17th, he pulled off his finest shot of the tournament when he chipped 50 yards into the hole.

James R. Macfarlane of Vancouver, gave up second place he held Wednesday to John E. Richardson, also of Vancouver who had a 36-hole total of 132 on identical rounds of 76. Macfarlane's second-round score was 82.

Braves Can't Move

By UPI

The Milwaukee County board has unanimously rejected a proposal to allow the Braves to move to Atlanta in mid-July.

The Braves had asked an early release from their stadium contract and offered Milwaukee County $400,000 plus $90,000 to Teams, Inc. a booster group. The board vote to reject was 24-0.

It was revealed at the board meeting that Teams, Inc. turned down the Braves' offer at a closed session last week.

The Braves had hoped to get a release from their Milwaukee contract and move into Atlanta's new $18,000,000 stadium by July 13th.

Their contract with the county runs through December 31st this year and they have National League permission to move to Atlanta in 1968.

The Milwaukee County board also was unanimous in referring a telegram, outlining the Braves' offer to the anti-trust division of the justice department.

The board later passed a resolution asking the state of Wisconsin for permission to purchase and operate a major league baseball team.

County executive John Doyle said the resolution was the first step in a move to start anti-trust proceedings against baseball.

Red Colony Inside Crown Colony

assistant commissioner. But they probably were only illegally selling sweepstakes tickets, he explained.

The area still had a few opium dens and a few one-woman brothels, he said.

Sticky Sweets

The rest are homes where women sit outside making small plastic novelties as a cottage industry; the textile sweatshops where half a dozen clanking looms are jammed into a space the size of the average Canadian living room and children sleep beneath them; small stores that display yellow mangoes and gaudy, sticky Chinese sweets.

Do-it-yourself high-rise builders, using no plans and without the approval of authorities, create monstrosities five and six storeys high that lean crazily over the alleyways. When the lean gets too bad they prop the building up against another, using bamboo poles.

In the middle of all this is the reason the Walled City came into being around the turn of the century.

Amid Filth

Once a magistrate's court and residence belonging to China, it stood in open country surrounded by rice paddies, on the border of the crown colony and the New Territories ceded to Britain on a 99-year lease in 1898.

The building is now an old people's home, clean and quiet amid the filth and turmoil, but still technically part of China. And this was the rock upon which one part of the Hong Kong resettlement scheme got hung up, though everyone hopes not permanently.

The bulldozers that were to grind the hovels of the Walled City to rubble were stopped by a single question directed to the Hong Kong administration by Peking. No threats of reprisal; just why are you doing this?

March Halted

The bulldozers left and the march of apartment blocks was temporarily halted.

By the end of the Japanese occupation the population of Hong Kong had decreased to 600,000. Civil war which led to the Communist takeover in China started the flow of refugees that has kept up despite imposition of immigration restrictions beginning in 1950.

By 1961 there were 3,228,409 people in the colony and today the population is estimated at about 3,800,000.

The colonial administration has attacked the huge problem of housing and caring for these refugees with great vigor. In 1964 it was estimated that 300,000 could be housed in resettlement schemes. In the decade since then, 688,000 have actually been provided for and there is still a waiting list of 719,000.

The newest blocks are up to 20 storeys providing sharp contrast to the shacks on the bare hillsides above.

Initial impetus was lent to the resettlement plan by the fact that squatters' huts occupied land urgently needed for industrial sites. Many of the new industries came from Shanghai and other places on the mainland after the Communist takeover. There are 6,300 registered industries including shipbuilding, steel-rolling, mills and aircraft engineering.

The textile and garment industry, has become Hong Kong's No. 1 concern, providing jobs for 42 per cent of the labor force and accounting for 32 per cent of the colony's exports.

NOBODY WAVED GOODBYE

The Canadian Film N.Y. is now about

STARTS MONDAY at the FOX CINEMA

How much longer can Hong Kong exist under these pressures?

In 1962 the colonial administration, its resources strained, sent back to China large numbers of illegal immigrants. The flow across the border, however, continues at a reduced rate.

Trade with many countries including Communist China continues to flourish and while it does Hong Kong will keep growing.

If you think you don't need disability insurance, you haven't seen the statistics.

Of 1000 persons aged 35, 83% will be disabled by illness or injury—for three months or more—before they reach age 65. That's what the statistics show.

What kind of a statistic will you be?

It makes sense to look into a Manufacturers Life Personal Income Protector Plan. Nothing can give you such peace of mind as the sure knowledge that if you are disabled and cannot work, a guaranteed income will come your way.

Our Plan has many advantages. It offers you a wide flexibility in amount of income and the length of time it will be paid. For example; you may be able to arrange for income benefits right through to age 65 for total disability due to sickness or for life when an accident is the cause. Accidental death and dismemberment benefits to age 65 are also offered. You can co-ordinate the plan with your other resources; tailor it to your needs and your pocketbook. Manufacturers Life cannot cancel the policy nor can your premium rate be raised—ever. The plan can be adjusted to correct the inadequacy of any short-term coverage you already have.

If you are interested, call the Man from Manufacturers. When advising you on disability income he offers you the same competent counsel available to you when you are planning your life insurance security.

Runaway Cripple Returns

VALLEYVIEW, Alta. (CP)—A crippled girl, whose grandmother's $3,000 bequest to help cure her polio condition sparked a nationwide search, has returned home to this community, it was learned Thursday.

Sharon Fisher, 17, returned to the Peace River farming community, 210 miles northwest of Edmonton, about a month ago, her mother Mrs. E. M. Fisher said in an interview.

MISSING YEAR

The girl had been gone for nearly a year when in mid-April a $3,000 bequest by her grandmother to help correct a polio condition started the search for her.

Mrs. Fisher said her daughter had run away with a boy friend on a trip which took them across Canada and the United States. She said Sharon had since married the boy, whose name was not learned.

SINCE 19

The grandmother's will specified the money had to be used to help correct the girl's polio condition, a paralyzed right arm and partially paralyzed left arm, which she had contracted at 13. Her mother said she was not worried when the girl disappeared because she knew that her daughter was afraid unless she went with her boyfriend she would otherwise lose him.

She now is making application to receive the $3,000 bequest, Mrs. Fisher said.

Commission To Examine Force Report

Prepared over the past two months by retired RCMP superintendent John A. Henry, the report deals with all aspects of municipal policing.

Commission chairman and Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis will ask the other commissioners, Lionel Speller and G. Stanley Edm., to release the report in the interests of the public.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Chevrolet has the most beautiful way of offering low-cost luxury (especially right now!)

Nothing garish, mind you. True luxury is never that—but let's mention a few items. Let's start with style—ground-hugging lines that seem to spell out speed and solidity at one and the same time. You'll like the way innumerable thoughtful touches give extra elegance; that rear-light cluster is pure jet set. And the ride is pure Jet-smooth, which is a distinctive sign of Chevrolet luxury. Interiors can be as plush as you please (from the merely magnificent in the Biscayne to the downright luxurious in the Super Sport). Foam cushioning, deep-twist carpeting, arm-rests all around, blended-air heater-defroster, dual sun shades, electric windshield wipers, crank-operated ventipanes—all of which make Chevrolet's low cost all the more remarkable, especially when you take into consideration the deal you're going to get from your Chevrolet dealer right now, during his Trade 'N' Travel Time! Pregnant 'In Line of Duty'

NEW YORK—A former police woman who claimed she became pregnant in the line of duty has been awarded $3,618 in back pay by a Brooklyn civil court jury.

Mrs. Johanna Levin, 33, announced she was advised by a police department physician to have a baby so that the pregnancy might help alleviate back pains from injuries she suffered while on duty. Mrs. Levin followed the advice and then was ordered to take a six-month maternity leave by the then police commissioner Stephen Kennedy in May, 1959. She was not paid for the six months.

She was injured in March, 1958, when struck by a steel door at the women's house of detention where she was assigned.

Mrs. Levin, who lives with her husband, Howard, a veterinarian in Brooklyn, has since retired from the department. The baby was a boy.

LONDON—Blonde Mandy Mee-Davis, 20, a central figure in the Stephen Ward vice scandal two years ago, has been named as co-respondent in a divorce suit published here. Mee-Davis, 22, seeks a divorce from French Baron Pierre Emile Corvellec.

LONDON—Australian officials have decided Mrs. Nellie Davis,

Mandy

Pacific Ships Can Call Direct

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's first commercial radio-telephone service to ships in the Pacific has started operation. Dr. Thomas How, B.C. director for the Transport Department, said the service will reach all over the ocean. Ships in the Pacific previously telephoned Canada by placing their calls through the American system at San Francisco.

Stripper No Shakes As a Dog Trainer

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Jersey striptease dancer was among those showing champion dogs here Wednesday but she won no honors other than a handshake from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

Mary Elizabeth (Irma the Body) Goodneighbor, of Paterson, N.J., was one of 385 dog owners from the United States and Canada who showed 800 dogs of 62 breeds at a Canadian Save the Children Fund dog show at Ashbury College.

Mr. Diefenbaker presented rosettes to a parade of 46 champions and shook hands with Miss Goodneighbor.

Miss Goodneighbor told a reporter she hopes to breed her Welsh corgi dogs when her stage career ends. She said she names the dogs "after men I admire."

Hospital Rule Our Idea —NDP Chief

WHITE ROCK (CP) — The provincial president of the New Democratic Party said Thursday B.C. hospitals have been told they must obtain written approval from patients before charging them a differential for private or semi-private care under the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Frank Snowsall said the order, contained in changes to the BCHIS manual, amounts to acceptance by the government of arguments put forward by opposition leader Strachan during the legislative session.

Mr. Snowsall recalled that the government defeated an NDP bill designed to "curb misuse of extra billing for hospital beds." But with the new orders the government had "backtracked and accepted completely the principle of the NDP bill."

CHARGED MORE

The NDP president said the party has received complaints that people were being placed in private wards because other beds weren't available and were then being charged more than the standard 31-a-day co-insurance under BCHIS.

In Victoria, BCHIS officials said the changes in the manual only clarify existing practice.

The manual change says a section of the BCHIS Act which permits hospitals to charge patients the differential when accommodation superior to standard wards is "ordered" by a doctor "should be interpreted as applying to the patient's preference."

The instructions say that whenever superior accommodation is assigned but "has not been freely requested in writing" the hospitals "must not levy a room differential charge."

Animals Made Immune To Multiple Sclerosis

HALIFAX (CP) — Studies on allergies have led researchers into important fields related to the crippling disease of multiple sclerosis, a Montreal physician said Thursday.

Dr. Bram Rose told a press conference at the Canadian Medical Association's annual meeting scientists had been successful in creating an illness in animals almost identical to multiple sclerosis. They had also been able, apparently, to make healthy animals immune to the disease.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease that attacks the nervous system, leaving the patient, in advanced stages, without use of limbs, often blinded, and incapable of controlling other body functions.

One cause seemed to be the disintegration of a sheath covering nerves, said Dr. Rose. This resulted in much the same occurrence as a wire deprived of its insulation; it then shorted out.

Research into allergies has been directed at antibodies, the chief agent in producing immunity to a particular disease. But, said the doctor, there are good and bad antibodies.

IMMUNITY FOUND

Allergists found what they called auto-immunity, a condition in which the antibody attacked healthy tissue. This occurred when tissue became infected. The antibody, a defensive mechanism of the body, moved in to remove the infected tissue.

Once this had been done, however, the antibody often attacked healthy tissue because it could not distinguish between that which was infected and that which was healthy.

BAD ANTIBODIES

There were indications multiple sclerosis was caused by such a process, the antibodies attacking the healthy nerve sheaths through ignorance.

"People with allergies suffer from their bodies making antibodies to harmless things," said Dr. Rose. "This combines with a producing substance to create a damaging effect."

GREATER RISK

Researchers were also studying the possibility geographical locations might have some bearing on allergies and the antibody work. In multiple sclerosis, for example, there were indications there was greater risk of having the disease for people born in the northern hemisphere.

SOME ALLERGIC

It was also indicated, though not absolutely proven, that some people could become allergic to their own infections. This seemed to be the case when a person who contracted a cold during certain seasons might eventually develop asthma.

NO CURE

There were no real means of curing allergies, but doctors were learning to manage them better.

Dr. Henry Schuknecht of Boston described how advances in equipment had led to successful treatment of some kinds of deafness. Easily-manipulated microscopes and high-speed bone drills had been responsible for treatment of otosclerosis.

DRILL HELPS

This disease, found only in man, consists of a bone growth in the inner ear covering the diaphragm that transmits sound vibrations to nerves. It also causes lesions and other harmful effects.

The microscope and high-speed drill made it possible to work in this delicate area, remove much of the bone, and insert a stainless steel substitute for the diaphragm.

With this new equipment hearing can be restored to many people.

June 26 Big Day For Two Schools

Perhaps, My Darling Daughter, But Stay in the House

This might have been the big summer for Robin Pettit—the year she took to the bikini. She marched bravely into the swim suit department and asked for something brief. But a very brief look in the relentless triple mirror told her she'd never dare. Next came a jaunty striped little thing, and Robin couldn't even get up the nerve to come out from behind the looking glass. Black trunks and striped top gave adequate coverage but the style was close to what she already had. Eventually, she picked a well-covered blouse design that even a mother could love.—(Suits courtesy of Woodward's. Photos by J. T. Jones.)

Bastion Mixup

Ottawa Fix-Up For Two

Alarmed by the possibility that work on Bastion Square may be delayed until next spring, city officials will make a rush trip to Ottawa next week to clear up a misunderstanding with the federal government.

Ottawa, which will contribute 50 per cent of the cost of rehabilitation of the square under urban renewal, seems to be under the impression that there is no hurry.

HISTORIC AREA

This is not so, Mayor Wilson told council Thursday. The city wants the work to be done this fall, he said, and someone had better get down to Ottawa at once and straighten the matter out.

Total cost of revitalizing the historic area will be between $140,000 and $180,000.

CLEAR IT UP

"There is some sort of holdup and I suggest that the city manager and Ald. Toone get down there at once and clear it up," said Mayor Wilson.

Ald. A. W. Toone is chairman of the urban renewal committee.

INTERVIEW SOUGHT

Victoria MP David Groos has been asked to obtain an appointment with the postmaster-general, under whose portfolio urban renewal is placed.

The provincial share of the cost of square beautification, 25 per cent, has been cleared with the government.

Ald. Toone said the misapprehension on the part of Ottawa as to Victoria's intentions came to light only a few days ago.

Wounded Dog Returns Home

A Dalmatian dog shot with a .22 rifle while lying in its owner's driveway Wednesday survived the ordeal and was brought back home Thursday. The dog is owned by Mrs. Carolyn McCallum, 477 Burnside, who is employed by the SPCA. It was shot in the back. Police suspect a person who is angry at the SPCA is responsible.

International Village Crisis

Unhappy City Dips Into Jam

By A. R. MURPHY

The local branch of the Children's International Summer Camp Villages organization is in a jam and the city will probably help meet the financial crisis—but aldermen are far from happy about it.

Council finance committee will recommend a grant of $300 to the group, as an emergency measure, and to help members of the organization's second executive salvage "a bad situation."

"We want to help these people who jumped in to try to save what was undoubtedly a crisis but I, for one, am certainly not happy about it," said Ald. Austin Curtis.

Gordon Pether told aldermen Thursday that the children will be arriving from nine countries in four weeks and $2,000 is still needed to make up the $8,000 budget needed for the operation of the international camp.

He pointed out that Oak Bay had reversed its earlier decision not to make a grant, and Esquimalt did likewise. Other municipal grants hinged on Victoria's decision.

The crisis and how it came about was described in a brief submitted by Mr. Pether.

The project was begun a year ago at a city meeting of 200 representatives of labor, business, church and ethnic groups as a joint project for International Co-operation Year (1965).

Proceeding Smoothly

Before Christmas the chairmanship was taken over by a gentleman "prominent in church and business circles." The committee was told that "plans were proceeding smoothly and an $8,000 budget was drawn up. It was hinted that a 'good angel' was prepared to underwrite the whole amount, the brief stated.

Everything was accepted at face value until an investigation at the end of March, when it was found that the maximum commitments had been made and there was just $22.50 in cash on hand.

"The resignation of the chairman was requested (it was later found that ill health was the cause of his shortcomings) and an emergency committee was formed to try to salvage the project," the brief said.

It was decided that raising $8,000 in three months was impossible and the project must be cancelled. The national chairman in Kitchener, Ont., and the national treasurer in Cincinnati, Ohio, were informed.

They flew to Victoria on the next plane.

"The facts of life" as explained by these men were that Vancouver Island was fully committed to holding the village; that delegations of four children from 10 different countries as far away as Denmark, Japan and Guatemala, had accepted and in some cases booked air passage.

Moral Obligation

Faced with a "strong moral obligation" and the probability of placing the community in bad odor, the committee felt that it was "morally bound to honor the undertaking made by its euphoric predecessors," Mr. Pether said.

First, the members sat down and wrote out personal guarantees amounting to $1,600. Then around-the-clock work began. Citizens, businesses, organizations, the government and any likely source of help was approached. Two thousand appeals were mailed.

At the moment there is $4,000 in the bank and another $2,000 promised. There are four weeks left.

"We shall be entertaining 40 ambassadors of goodwill, each handicapped as a future leader. Who can say that benefits may not accrue to all of us from a gesture of hospitality on our part," Mr. Pether observed.

Car Wash Set

A 50-cent car wash will be held by District 113 Junior Forest Wardens from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at Woodward's Service Station in the Mayfair Shopping Centre.

The Law and Jerald Bentley

They Found Price Tag On Free Enterprise

BY IAN SMITH

Officialdom and free enterprise met head-on at the Causeway Thursday.

Guess which side won.

A couple of enterprising U.S. students had only been sketching portraits for half an hour when they were told by a city policeman to pick up their pencils and go.

There's this business of a licence, see, and Jerald Bentley and Samuel LeBaron had neglected to look into that sort of thing before they set up their outdoor studio.

Now they know.

At City Hall the shorts-clad young men were let in on the fact that a permit costs $30, if and when it is available.

"We're supposed to write a formal letter of application," said Jerald, "and apparently we can expect all sorts of red tape."

"But I do want to do artwork here. The location is so nice."

He has done this sort of thing before. "I worked on the Loop in Chicago," he said. "The licence costs $10 there."

Jerald has also sketched on the streets of Madison, Wis., where he went to university. He earned a master's degree in philosophy there, which probably enables him to take the right attitude about this sort of thing.

"I just live," he said, scratching the start of what will undoubtedly be an impressive beak-like beard.

His companion, Samuel, is not interested in art so much as music. A student at Stanford, he came up here with the idea of joining a jazz band or something similar.

The pair met about three years ago and, while they attend different universities, have kept in touch.

"We thought we'd come up here this summer and see what it was like," said Jerald. "We've only been here a week, but we like it real well."

He should like it even better, if he gets his licence.

Victoria Woman's Heirloom

Sword Recalls Waterloo

A sword used in the Battle of Waterloo 150 years ago today, now is the prized heirloom of a Victoria woman.

Mrs. J. W. Gibbs, 10877 Madrona Drive, Deep Cove, has the cavalry sword and scabbard used by her great-grandfather, Lieut. James Clarke from Otley, Yorkshire.

It has been handed down through the years and Mrs. Gibbs now is holding it in trust for the next generation of the Clarke family.

Brothers James and John Clarke fought together through the battle which defeated Napoleon in Belgium, June 18, 1815.

Both had attended the costume ball given on the eve of the battle by the Duchess of Richmond. John was killed in action. They had been called to battle so suddenly, he was still wearing dancing slippers when his body was carried off the field.

Mrs. Gibbs said the sword blade is inscribed with gold tooling.

EATON'S

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

I think I've said this before but I'll say it again anyway. It is a fact that almost every week or so that one hears of yet another former Victorian back on a visit.

This time it is the Hon. Carol and Mrs. Fallowes who will be here Sunday and will be staying with their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Hunter.

Their grandsons, Garth and Bruce Hunter, are also looking forward to this visit.

Mrs. Fallowes was last in Victoria more than 10 years ago when her mother, the late Mrs. Christopher Cator, died. Mrs. Fallowes, the former Browne Redwell grew up in Victoria and was the daughter of the late, Mr. E. V. Redwell, a noted Victoria lawyer.

Old Families

Talking about "old Victoria families" it would be probably no more than news item to most people that Elliott Roseworth, second son of the F. D. R. was elected mayor of Miami Beach.

The new first lady of Miami Beach, Elliott's wife is a descendant of noted Victoria pioneers. Her great-grandparents

Return East

Dr. and Mrs. W. Kaye Lamb have returned east after visiting here for a few days. Dr. Lamb is now federal government architect in Ottawa. When they lived in Victoria he was provincial architect and librarian.

Patio Party

The warm June sun has been more than kind to party guests the last few days.

The patio at the home of the D. J. Hunters, ringed with brilliant begonia blooms and accented with old-fashioned honeysuckle was a perfect setting for the luncheon Jean Hunter gave for Marion Price of Brentwood, Calif.

Luckily, considering the weather, Jeanette had asked her guests to wear casual dress so it was easy to acquire that much sought after sun tan.

Pat Olsen, busy knitting, had on one of those outside straw cartwheel hats in deep blue with white felt flowers on the crown. Leta Newell-Smith and Dorcas Wallace didn't mind a bit that they had on the apple color same style bathing suits. They minded so little that

Wedding in Seattle Of Interest Here

Of interest in Victoria is the news of the recent marriage of Libby Olive Ruch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Ruch, Seattle, and Mr. Curtis Wade Carlsmith, son of Mr. and Mrs.

Merrill L. Carlsmith, Hilo, Hawaii. The bride whose mother is the former Helen Hembruff of Victoria, is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hembruff of this city.

Dr. Elmer Christie officiated at the wedding which took place in the chapel of the Church of the Epiphany, Seattle.

For her wedding the attractive dark-haired bride chose a floor-length gown of ivory silk cloud peau de sole, fashioned with a bateau neckline, elbow-length sleeves and fitted bodice. Seed pearl embroidery accented the midriff of the bodice and a court-length train fell from a pearl embroidered bow enhancing the back waistline. She wore a bracelet of stephanotis in her hair and carried a bouquet of ivory roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Malcolm Graham, matron of honor, and Mrs. Thomas Van Winkle, groom's sister, as bridesmaids, wore in moss green linen floor-length gowns with round necklines and empire waistlines. They were matching linen head bows and carried yellow gladiolus.

Mr. Robert Carlsmith was best man for his brother, Dr. Albert Gordon and Mr. Van Winkle were ushers.

A reception followed at the Washington Athletic Club.

The newlyweds will spend three months travelling in Europe, the Middle East and Orient. On their return they will make their home in Hilo, Hawaii where the groom will join the same law firm his father is with as senior partner.

Victorians attending the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. Julius Schleicher of Goodacre Towers and Mr. and Mrs. R. Lawrence Green of Queen Anne Heights. The bride is the niece of Mrs. Schleicher.

Up-Island Woman Honored

CUMBERLAND—Members of Holy Trinity guild met in the church hall, recently, and honored Mrs. G. Apps with a small gift. Mrs. Apps with her husband leaves June 22 for a six-week tour of Britain and the Continent. Renovations to the kitchen are still awaiting the plumbing installations to finish the work.

Following the completion of this phase, the new floor covering will be laid and the electric stove and garbage burner installed. When work is completed the kitchen will be completely refurnished and modernized. Also included in the program was modernization of both restrooms.

Members learned that the rummage and action sale held recently was a success. Another sale will be held early in September and members are asked to gather suitable items during the summer recess.

Mrs. G. Apps was honored a second time recently, when she was presented with a bon voyage gift by members of Holy Trinity WA at Cumberland.

The regular meeting was held in the Parish hall. A report of the summer tea and sale of work, was given by president Mrs. L. Cooper at the regular meeting in the Parish hall. An excellent profit was realized from the tea and a cheque was given to the church wardens as a donation from the WA.

The WA will hold no further meetings until September.

Disturbed Women Marry Below Social Status

VANCOUVER (CP)—An over-drawn ($3 per cent) and disheartening majority of mentally disturbed women marry below their social status, says a Montreal sociologist.

Professor William A. Westley of McGill University says his research indicates men and women who make socially successful marriages have a better relationship than the socially unsuccessful.

He told a meeting recently of the Canadian Political Science Association:

"The results show that in general, disturbed women marry

"Since she is also socially stronger than the man she marries, she may have the feeling he is a weakling."

But the emotional instability of a woman who marries down does not necessarily apply to her husband or daughters, he said. Professor Westley said the woman who marries down introduces a strain into her marriage, and "in a cultural sense, she is degrading herself somewhat."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter signed "Frank" and I think your advice was the worst yet.

It is a gentleman's place to protect his wife or his girl. When that drunk called Frank's wife a mopey, low-legged broad he had every right to belt him one in the knicker. Your suggestion that Frank was a roughneck, and that he and his wife should have left the restaurant, was strictly for the birds. Why don't you ask your husband what HE would have done if somebody called you a mopey, low-legged broad? — MORE THAN FRANK.

Dear More Than: I asked him. He said he hasn't hit a guy since he was in the sixth grade and he is in no shape to start taking on drunks in restaurants. Any more questions?

Dear Ann Landers: I was very much interested in your warning to the girl who wrote about kissing a boy who has a sore on his lip.

The girl was concerned about lip cancer. You told her (and correctly) that lip cancer was not nearly so deadly as another disease which could be contracted from kissing. Then you demonstrated great courage and named the REAL threat—syphilis.

Small sores on the lip or mouth are often not noticeable. So many teenagers have skin problems that most eruptions are passed off as "adolescent blossoms." I believe you would perform an invaluable service if you printed more information on this subject.

What does a syphilis sore look like? If a girl discovers, after she has kissed a boy, that he has a sore on his lip, would applying alcohol to her own lips protect her against the disease?

If a person thinks he has a venereal disease and is afraid to tell his parents, what should he do? I am a high school senior and must confess shameful ignorance on this subject. My friends don't know any death.

more than I do. Most kids don't want to talk about venereal disease because somebody might get the idea they have done something wrong and are worried.

Please print my letter and give us kids some facts.—CHICKEN. Dear Chicken: The number of reported cases of VD in this country has tripled in the last 10 years. Almost 60% of the cases are in the 15-to-19 year-old group. If this isn't a serious social problem I don't know what one is.

A syphilis sore resembles a cold sore. It can appear on the lip, in the mouth, or anywhere on the surface of the skin. It often itches and it's different from most sores because it is very slow to heal. And THIS is the clue. If you have a sore that is stubborn about disappearing it is a danger signal.

Wiping your lips with alcohol is no protection against syphilis. If you have a small crack on your lip. It is likely that the germ has already moved into your blood stream.

Anyone who suspects he has a venereal disease should do either of two things at once:

1. Go to a physician. I know of no doctor who would tell your parents if you asked him not to. The treatment is simple, painless, and relatively inexpensive.
2. Go to the city or county health department and ask for a VD test. In most cities both the test and treatment are free. The doctors will respect your confidence if you ask them to. Public Health officers are not interested in turning kids in or punishing them. They are interested only in treating and curing patients of this deadly disease, which, if not treated can cause blindness, sterility, insanity and death.

OES Country Fair

Esquimalt Chapter No. 41, Order of Eastern Star, will hold a Country Fair from 7 to 9 p.m., June 22, in Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street. Eastwood is in charge of refreshments.

The cathedral of Milan, begun in 1386, was declared completed early in 1963.

WE SPECIALIZE IN:

- Reconditioning of lawns that are in bad shape. Summer is the best time for topdressing of lawns. Ask for free estimate.
- Rearranging overgrown gardens so there will be far less upkeep and yet the garden looks much better.

FRUIT and ORNAMENTAL TREES, ROSES

All planted in wholesale containers and then can be transplanted any time without any damage to root systems or interruption of growth.

ROSES—We have hundreds of Roses in bloom. Therefore NOW is the best time to buy your Rose.

TOP SOIL

By far the cheapest and best fertilizer for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as top dressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. Top-dressed lawns moreover are far less vulnerable to weeds and most important of all require less watering. In comparison, one dollar will buy only about 15 pounds of fertilizer which at best contains only 3 pounds of plant food. It will therefore only act as a shortlived stimulant without any lasting value.

The price of weedfree topsoil is such that considering the cost of weeding and the health hazards involved, TOPSOIL THAT IS INFESTED WITH WEEDS HAS NO VALUE AT ALL.

For best quality black Metacholin topsoil free of weeds and clay, apply:

They laughed
when they saw a Scot start to make gin.

He smiled.

In 1769, all London had a great laugh at the idea of a Scot trying to beat the English at their own game. Making gin. But Alexander Gordon was a spirited man. With a line of spirited ancestors that reached clear back into Scottish antiquity.

And so, while London laughed, he smiled a knowing smile.

The rest is history—how a Scot made English gin famous the world over.

Today, Gordon's is the best-selling gin in the world. Because Gordon's descendants are as canny as he was.

Nobody but Gordon's makes Gordon's Gin, no matter where it's made—and it's made in nine different countries, including Canada.

The exact and original formula is never varied for any reason whatsoever. Ever.

And nobody but Gordon's can approve the finished gin for bottling.

Now, some people won't understand all this fuss about making good gin. But you understand, don't you? You like gin. So do we.

Honeymoon In Europe

Following their recent evening marriage in Metropolitan United Church, Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas Molnar left on a honeymoon trip to Europe.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Molnar chose a white Italian-knit suit by Fontel, accented with white kid accessories. A pink tulle hat, made by Mrs. A. Sheard, and an orchid corsage on tone, completed her ensemble.

The bride, the former Betty Jean Thornbury, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Thornbury, 1188 Old Esquimalt Road. The groom is the son of Mrs. A. Kallay, Vancouver.

Bouquets of white stocks and pink snapdragons and candelabra decorated the church for the ceremony at which Rev. A. E. King officiated.

"Praise My Lord, The King of Heaven," and "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" were played by organist Mr. E. Boothroyd during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length A-line gown of silk and lace, styled with a cathedral train of French lace extending from the shoulders. The bodice of the gown featured elbow-length sleeves and the skirt was highlighted by a front panel of appliqued lace. Her veil of silk illusion net misted from a headpiece of Austrian crystals and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and staphanotis.

Matching gowns of pink tulle, styled with a train extending from a bow at the shoulder, were the choice of maid of honor, Miss Jennifer Conn, and bridesmaids, the Misses Gayle Smith and Jane Gilliland, cousin of the bride. They wore floral headpieces, edged with net. Pale pink rosebuds were in their bouquets.

Mr. Louis Sohar was best man. Ushering guests to pews marked with white satin bows and bells were the bride's brother, Mr. William Thornbury, Mr. Ralph Martin and Mrs. Mario Pasquini.

Pink satin wedding bells topped the tiered cake, made by Mrs. E. R. Rickinson, which centred the bride's table at the reception following in the clubhouse of Victoria Golf Club. Floral arrangements in pink and white candles in silver candelabra completed table decorations.

Mr. E. R. Rickinson proposed the toast to the bride. The couple will make their home in Gonsere Towers.

'Secret Agent' Convicted In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Albert Emerson Simpson, construction worker who passed as a James Bond type of undercover agent and whose five-cornered martial mix-up reached all the way to the governor general's residence, was convicted Thursday on three charges.

Simpson, 43, a former prison employee, was found guilty of dealing in forged acts of Parliament and one of procuring a forged marriage.

Magistrate Gordon Scott, who termed Simpson "a persuasive and unprincipled liar," set June 25 for sentence.

FORGED BILL

Simpson was convicted of forging a parliamentary bill annulling his marriage to Alma Helen Simpson and another permitting him to marry Christine Adelle MacLellan, a social worker and master of arts from McGill University.

The Crown extended the purpose of the first document was to convince Miss MacLellan that Simpson was free to remarry and the purpose of the second was to satisfy Miss MacLellan, who later bore three children by Simpson, that her union was morally and religiously in order.

In convicting Simpson, the magistrate said there was no room for argument that the documents were forged.

Both bore a signature purported to be that of Governor General George Vanier. Police experts said the signatures were "very poor imitations."

Magistrate Scott, said Simpson married one woman and offered to marry three others and "refused from all the relationships."

Miss MacLellan said the man she believed to be her legal husband told her that he was the leader of a government, anti-Communist, anti-fascist secret society.

SHE CO-OPERATED

She had co-operated with him in his "top secret" work. On his instructions she had even placed a Vancouver citizen under continuous surveillance and later made a very detailed report on his activities, together with an analysis of his personality, supposedly for the "western area military command."

Miss MacLellan and the other women told how Simpson used code words, appeared and disappeared unexpectedly and told them his work could not be disclosed to police.

All five, including Simpson's first wife Alma Helen Simpson, told the court how he charmed them, that they believed his stories about secret work and that they had been ready to help him track down the enemies of Canada and the western world.

Molesters to Be Shown to Public

The majority of groups represented at a private screening Monday of a new film called The Molesters has agreed it should be shown to the Victoria public.

The film will be shown to those 16 and over, plus those younger if accompanied by adults, next week on Thursday Friday and Saturday at the Atlas Theatre.

Opposed to the showing of the film were representatives of Greater Victoria PTA. In favor were police, press and TV.

Said Police Chief John F. Gregory of the film: "It has great educational value, and it stresses the need for all parents to report immediately to police authorities whenever their children come into contact with these people."

The Swiss-made documentary, The Molesters, was produced by the Swiss Film Commission.

Garden Notes

Showing, Sharing

By M. V. CHESNUT

If you can possibly manage it, I suggest you make a special effort to visit the Victoria Horticultural Society's summer show at the Victoria Curling Club, 1952 Quadra Street, today or Saturday. The official name of the affair is now the Summer Flower Show and Horticultural Exhibition, for it has developed far beyond a simple display of flowers.

For instance, one of the displays will be a whole living garden, 80 by 20 feet, sponsored jointly by Scott & Pedern, Buckfield's, Cubbon Lumber and the B.C. Hydro electrical division.

A special lobby display has been arranged by Mr. Butterworth of Government House gardens. All the latest garden gadgets and equipment can be inspected, together with the newest miracle drugs and chemicals for controlling plant growth and fighting pests and disease in plants. All this in addition to the display of flowers, flower arrangements, fruit and vegetables.

The doors of the Victoria Curling Club will be open from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. today and from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Saturday. Admission is 50 cents and children accompanied by adults are admitted free. There is a restaurant in the building where you can break your inspection tour and rest your feet while you take tea.

As Ed Sullivan would say, this is a really big show, with 120 different classes covering all kinds of flowers, artistic arrangements, Bonsai trees, fruits and vegetables. I am told that the exhibits in the African violet class alone are well worth the admission price. For my money, there isn't any better way of spotting new and attractive plants to grow in your own garden than to see them at their best and clearly labelled in such a comprehensive show.

Some folks like to take the family to such affairs in the evening, when there is lots of excitement and crowds. Personally, I prefer to get down to these shows in the early afternoon of the first day, when the flowers are at their freshest and before most of the crowd arrives.

At such a time, I can browse to my heart's content without feeling that I am blocking the traffic in the aisles. I can stop to write down the names of any plants new to me, together with a brief description, so I can order them for my own garden if and when funds permit.

Don't be embarrassed over whipping out a notebook and writing in it when you visit the show—dozens of other people will be doing the same thing. It is the intelligent way of capitalizing on your visit, and your notes will be worth many times the admission fee when the time comes to do some replanting in your garden.

Don't be shy, either, of asking questions of the officials and exhibitors — or even the distinguished judges, if you can corral any of them. There isn't anything these experienced hobby gardeners like better than to answer questions and get novices started on the right path.

The motto appearing on the letterhead of the Victoria Horticultural Society is unusually apt: "Show what you grow, Share what you know." The society implements its motto with its public demonstrations of fruit and rose pruning, its summer and its fall flower shows, and its monthly newsletter to its members. This is indeed showing and sharing.

JACK SMITH Plays with Words

Beauty in Ear of Beholder

The late Wilfred Funk, who spent a lifetime exploring the headwaters of the English language, once compiled a list of what he considered the 10 most beautiful words. They were dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring, tranquil, mist, luminous, chimera, golden and melody.

These are beautiful words, indeed, falling on the ear as soft waves fall on tropic shores at twilight. But there is a sameness in Funk's chosen words that tells us something about him. He preferred the quiet, soft words that speak of love, marriage, motherhood. His words sing of a gentle and secure world, sweetly serenaded by celestial music and lighted by an ambient glow.

All his 10 words describe something that in itself is pleasant to experience. Everybody loves the dawn, theoretically, at least. I have had some ghastly dawns. Does this mean that words seem beautiful if they denote beautiful things? Or that we tend to invent beautiful words for things we find beautiful?

I don't remember ever seeing a list of the 10 most unpleasant words. I offer the following, dredged up from my own pools of ugliness.

Beich, grub, slop, grouch, asphalt, scratch, quack, backache, hunk and crabgrass.

Each of these defines something most of us find unpleasant. Also, each sounds unpleasant in itself. But would they sound unpleasant if they meant something pleasant?

What if asphalt meant moonlight, instead of asphalt? Would the Asphalt Sonata be any less enchanting? Wouldn't we still experience bitter-sweet nostalgia if we heard Guy Lombardo playing Asphalt and Roses?

Crabgrass has possibilities, too. A word doesn't have much chance of being loved if it happens to be a weed. There are flower words and weed words. But crabgrass might be thought beautiful if it meant rosebud.

Could the poet have written, "Gather ye crabgrass while ye may, for time is still a-flying?"

I suppose not. Rosebuds are called rosebuds because they couldn't be called crabgrass and still be rosebuds.

Funk's list might appeal to romantic schoolgirls, brides and others who live in a misty gold ephemeral cocoon of illusion. But there are other beautiful words, too, with harder edges and a wider kind of music.

What about these? Machine, misadventure, escalate, detonation, fall-out, mushroom, holocaust, pulverize and oblivion?

More About Words SYDNEY HARRIS

There are basically two kinds of words in the English language — what the philologists call "native words," and what they call "loan words." The native words are Old English; the loan words have been borrowed from Latin, French, German, and so on.

lish, however, is that related words often have no connection with one another. This is especially true in the relationship between adjectives and nouns; no other language is so capricious.

Consider such native words as "eye," "mind," "nose," "mouth," "sea," "son," and "town." What are the adjectives for such words? They are all Latin, and bear no resemblance to the nouns they come from: "Eye" gives us "ocular;" "mind" gives us "mental;" "nose" gives us "nasal;" "mouth" gives us "oral;" "sea" gives us "marine;" "son" gives us "filial;" and "town" gives us "urban."

How is a foreigner to know this, or how is a child to learn this? Unless one has a firm grounding in Latin, hundreds of adjectives for the most ordinary nouns remain unknown, or improperly used. And even the highly educated hardly know all the adjectives that apply to such common words as "uncle," "head," "foot," "finger," "chest," and many others.

We all know that dogs, cats and cows are "canine," "feline," and "bovine" — but how should anyone except a zoologist know that sheep are "ovine," foxes are "vulpine," wolves are "lupine," or (horror of horrors) chickens are "gallinaceous?"

Even our basic bodily senses do not form their adjectives from their nouns — "sight" gives us "visual;" "hear" gives us "aural;" "touch" gives us "tactile;" "smell" gives us "olfactory."

This is not a chauvinistic plea for native words as against loan words; one of the glories and beauties of the English language is its ability to assimilate and transform words from other languages to its own use. But it is to suggest that one reason we do not speak our language with the suppleness with which foreigners speak theirs is the difficulty in harnessing together linguistic stocks of such different ancestry.

Levine to Cleanse Literary Shocker

By SHEILAN GRAHAM

LONDON (NANA)—This will come as a surprise to author Henry Miller. Producer Joe Levine is planning to transform his Tropic of Cancer shocker into a film of Paris in the 20s, as he turned Harlem into a disto of the 30s. All the bad words and situations will be eliminated. Carroll Baker is in Tropic of Cancer. She has a contract.

I am told that Walter Matthau will repeat in the movie version of The Odd Couple, and that Jack Lemmon has the best chance of playing his sidekick. But as the 12-month deal has not yet been signed, there is still a chance that Art Carney can play his role in the movie. . . . Len Deighton's Funerals in Berlin best seller, goes before the cameras in October, with Michael Caine again playing the role he created in The Ipcress File.

Elizabeth Ashley and George Peppard have made two films together, but do not plan any more movie duets. "After all," says Liz, "we're not the Bobby twins." They are both busy with lawsuits. Miss Ashley suing Paramount for $100,000 for a picture she claims was taken from her. George is suing and being sued by the same studio on account of his withdrawal from Sands of Kalahari.

When Mervyn Levy was in the south of France filming his Moment to Moment picture, he attended a party and was delighted when the most glamorous guest there, Sophia Loren, flung her arms around his neck and said, "You don't remember me?" Sophia explained, "When you directed Quo Vadis, years and years ago in Rome, my mother and I worked all the way through the picture — as extras." Note to directors: Be nice to extras.

The British press pounced on Victor Mature when he stopped in London to buy some raincoats, on the way to Rome. They consider him the last of the colorful characters from Hollywood. As always Vic put on a good show for them. Vic will be 50 on his next birthday after which, he says, he will stop putting on a good show for anyone.

Sewage Battle Won?

Have Gorge area residents won their battle against pollution?

Members of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Association have been asking themselves this question since Thursday, as applicants to dump treated sewage into Colquitz Creek appeared to be weakening in their stands.

Works Minister W. N. Chant indicated that an alternative site might be chosen for a retarded children's hospital, which would have thrown 80,000 gallons a day of treated effluent into the creek, and thence into the Gorge.

And a remark made by Saanich Councillor William Campbell at a panel discussion Wednesday was being interpreted as indicating a possible change of heart by Saanich, which had applied to dump 35,000 gallons a day of effluent into the creek from a Northridge subdivision treatment plant.

A SIGN? "This might be the sign we've won," said Richard Faulstich, association president. "But we won't stop protesting until we get a definite answer on this."

Coun. Campbell, chairman of the Saanich public works committee, said thought had been given to pumping the waters of Colquitz Creek over farms during the summer months.

"This would effectively end all pollution from the creek, including pollution from the provincial jail on Wilkinson Road," said Coun. Campbell.

HOTEL PLAN

"The Royal Oak Hotel is planning such a thing, except they will store their sewage in a lagoon all winter, and then spray it over fields in the summer."

Coun. Campbell's suggestion is similar to one made earlier by sanitary inspector Lloyd Smith, who indicated that a plan of green-belt disposal might work. In such a plan, the natural function of trees and other plants in purifying water is utilized by spreading the effluent into the ground through a disposal system, where the roots of plants can get at it, instead of simply dumping it into a creek.

"This would not work in the winter," said Mr. Campbell, "but during the summer Colquitz Creek is flowing at only 250 gallons a minute, and this could be easily handled."

He emphasized, however, that all this would be merely a stopgap scheme until proper sewers can be laid.

"What we need is for the municipalities all to get together and put up the money for a complete sewer system," he said. "These treatment plants can't stretch on and on."

He called for public support of the coming sewage survey, and said he felt that Saanich had been doing its best in the matter.

Mr. Chant, meanwhile, said the hospital might be moved if opposition continues to the provincial government application. A spokesman for the provincial health department said other sites had been considered in this area before the Colquitz location was picked.

Saanich MLA John Tiedalle had earlier indicated that he did not agree with putting sewage into the Gorge from the children's home.

Boston's Pig Liver Woman: Change for Better Reported

BOSTON, (UPI) — A 34-year-old Boston woman, whose entire blood supply was rerouted three times through a dead pig's liver in the hope her own acutely diseased liver would regenerate, was reported Thursday to have had a "dramatic change for the better."

Dr. William V. McDermott Jr., head of the Harvard surgical unit at Boston city hospital, said the woman was "just great. I haven't said this before." Her own liver was working, he said.

"It looks like she is on her own."

McDermott said the woman was conscious, taking food, asking when she could go home. But he stressed that she was "still very sick. She won't be really well for several months, maybe four."

Beauty Area 'Ruined'

Colonist Island correspondent Don Huntley said he was shocked to find devastated forests at what had once been a beauty spot on the Gold River route along the west coast of Vancouver Island. He said the area was ruined by logging operations which ran right down to the shore of Crest Lake.

Traffic Plan Okay—Whither the Cash?

City aldermen and their traffic experts think the capital's money coming from? Victoria's share of the cost of the $44,000,000 peninsula plan is about $25,000,000—a sum far beyond the city's financial capabilities in the next 15 years, it is agreed. Completion of the scheme is projected to 1981.

It is generally agreed that the first step should be discussion of the problem intermunicipally with the adjacent communities affected.

Next, with a view to obtaining massive aid, talks must be held with provincial and federal governments.

"It's pretty obvious that we can't just pick up $25,000,000 over the next 15 years. We must consider where we are going to get assistance, and the obvious place is from senior governments," said City Manager Dennis Young.

Prepared after many months of research, the transportation study envisages a freeway from Swartz Bay south to a point between Tattersall and Finlayson. From there it would veer westerly and proceed through Victoria West to Selkirk Water, where it would cross by bridge into James Bay.

It would be supplemented by arterials and a complex program of improved streets, street extensions and new street construction, all designed to enable traffic to funnel away from the downtown area or to get there with speed if drivers so desired.

A review of the massive report was prepared by city engineer James Garnett for convenience of aldermen and intermunicipal committee members. The review saw the work being done in three phases, each spanning from three to five years. Included would be construction of bridges or trestles at Rock Bay, Point Ellice and Johnson Street, as well as Selkirk Water.

LARGE SHARE
These would cost more than $17,000,000—a large share of Victoria's portion of the total cost.

Despite the staggering cost, aldermen all agreed that the plan was a good one and the conclusions reached by the city engineer in his review were valid. More intensive discussion of all aspects of the plan will be held at future meetings, when the primary question of where the money is coming from is solved.

City Hospitals Get Massive Facelifts

Victoria's two major hospitals are in the midst of costly expansion programs.

At St. Joseph's, work is continuing on the second phase of a major improvement program and officials expect to begin the final $4,000,000 phase this summer.

The second phase includes an office area, expected to be completed by the end of June, while a new emergency area will be finished in about two months. A new wing is included in the final phase.

CONTRACTS AWARDED

At Royal Jubilee, most of the contracts covering completion of the new building's unfinished ward have been awarded. The ward will be finished this summer at a cost of about $45,000.

Tenders for a $25,000 boiler house are expected to be called within a week, but it will take another three months before tenders can be called for the hospital's new $500,000 school of nursing.

A handful of Victoria power yachts are entering two international races next month.

The one-day International Cruiser Race will be held July 17 from Bremerton, near Seattle, to Nanaimo.

More than 100 boats, from 25 feet to 65 feet or longer, will enter.

ABOUT 60 BOATS

The next day about 40 boats will enter the predicted log race which starts in Nanaimo and covers most of the waters around Vancouver Island.

It is divided into two sections spread over nearly three weeks and finishes in Victoria.

KINSMEN 88 SQUADRON, Royal Canadian Air Force Cadets, will present the salute at 8:30 p.m. today at the sunset ceremonies on the Legislature grounds.

Major renovations to the clubhouse will cost Royal Victoria Yacht Club more than $25,000, a spokesman said Thursday.

A contract has been awarded to Patterson Construction Ltd. and work started Wednesday. The job is expected to take two to three months.

Tenders for a $10,000 workshop building will be called within the next few weeks.

Canadian authors compare notes in Victoria Monday, when the Canadian Authors' Association convention moves here from the University of British Columbia.

The convention began Thursday. Monday, the 100 delegates meet for a garden tea party at the home of James Audain, then move to the Empress Hotel at 7 p.m. for a banquet sponsored by the provincial government.

BANQUET SPEAKERS
University of Victoria President Dr. Malcolm Taylor and author Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River will be speakers at Monday's banquet. Victoria delegates include Mrs. Ella Davis, Mrs. Edith Rive, Mrs. Estelle Inman and Muriel Milne.

Dr. R. S. Longley of Wolfville, N.S., was re-elected president. Miss Gladys Gowlan of Victoria and Mr. Haig-Brown are among regional representatives.

A resolution from Port Moody was passed asking that the pension be raised to $135 a month in case of bereavement.

Resolutions from Ladner,

Royal Oak, Mission City, West End and Collingwood were passed asking the government to adopt a Canada-wide medicare plan as outlined in the Hall royal commission on medical services.

A resolution opposing fluoridation of community water supplies was passed as was one urging that school taxes be eliminated from taxes of pensioners.

recommending that government inspections of nursing homes be made without prior notification was adopted.

Also approved was a resolution asking the provincial government to start a program of boarding houses and nursing homes for the aged financed out of public revenue.

Delegates meet again today to elect an executive.

Patrol Strafed, UN Protests Cyprus Attack

NICOSIA (AP) — The United Nations peace forces in Cyprus protested Thursday over an incident Wednesday when a 20-man patrol of its Canadian contingent was pinned down by Turkish-Cypriot fire in the Kyrenia Mountains, 18 miles north of Nicosia.

This was announced by UN peace force headquarters here, which said the Canadian patrol had gone to demand removal of a Turkish-Cypriot fortification erected in violation of cease-fire agreements.

The UN announcement said three officers and 17 men of the Queen's Own Rifles had to take cover when some 30 shots from rifles and light machine-guns were fired at them from a Turkish-Cypriot position at a range of about 75 yards.

NO CASUALTIES

The announcement said there were no casualties as most of the shots passed over the Canadian soldiers' heads, though "four shots landed near the patrol." The Canadians did not return the fire, the announcement said.

The commander, Gen. K. S. Thimayya of India, submitted a formal protest today to the Turkish-Cypriot leader, Fazil Kucuk.

According to the official UN announcement, the incident occurred when the Canadian patrol advanced to take action after the Turkish-Cypriot side had refused a UN ultimatum to dismantle a new mountain-top fortification.

COPTER ON SCENE

As soon as his men came under fire, Maj. Bill Crow, 49, of Burlington, Ont., commander of B-company of the Queen's Own Rifles, who led the patrol, radioed headquarters. Within minutes, a UN helicopter with a senior staff officer aboard landed near the craggy mountain top, where the Turkish-Cypriots were fortified, to arrange a ceasefire.

After negotiations, the Turks agreed to remove the new position and later, the Turkish-Cypriot leadership apologized to UN headquarters.

This was the first time in more than six months that Canadian troops had come under fire on the island.

Strategic Bombers Plaster Red Jungle

Giant B-52 in air

Heavies on Stage In Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Twenty-seven B-52 jet bombers on a 2,200-mile mission from Guam rained tons of explosives on a South Vietnamese area where Communist guerrillas were massed for surprise raids in the Saigon area, the defence department said Thursday.

Thirty of the big strategic bombers went on the mission but two collided in the air and plummeted into the sea west of the Philippines with a total of 12 crewmen aboard. One airman was rescued and other survivors were sighted on rafts about 30 miles west of Luzon.

A third plane flew over the assigned target, only 25 to 30 miles northwest of Saigon, but a malfunction prevented it from dropping its deadly load.

The pilot of a tanker plane which refueled the B-52s in flight reported that he saw the two bombers collide and crash into the sea.

The bombing marked yet another step in the U.S. fight against the Viet Cong.

And it marked the first time the B-52, developed for the Strategic Air Command, has dropped bombs in anger since it became operational in 1957. Even during the Korean War the United States did not resort to using strategic jet bombers.

Red Colony in Crown Colony

Enclave in Enclave Slum Amid Renewal

By Ian Street

The shadow of Communist China hangs heaviest over one small section of the teeming metropolis of Hong Kong.

There, in the section known as the Walled City, time stands still in narrow, twisted alleys flanked by crazily leaning buildings.

This is the home of the small textile sweat shops, some vice, and several thousand people just trying to claw out an existence among fiddly garbage piles.

British Touch

The fact that the Walled City has no walls provides a property British touch.

It crouches on a hillside off the end of the runway of Hong Kong's Kai Tak airport, with big jets roaring overhead at intervals of a few minutes. It is a monument to the Cold War.

Around it cluster the eight-

storey modern apartments built under the crown colony's resettlement plan.

Given Tour

I was fortunate to be taken on a tour of the Walled City by assistant police commissioner Charles Sutcliffe, a tough career policeman who came to Hong Kong from East Africa where he was posted during the Mau Mau troubles.

Mr. Sutcliffe heads the criminal investigation branch of the colony's police force. He's big, quiet spoken, bushy-browed and graying at the temples, wears a business suit and looks his jacket in the trunk of the police car in case it's stolen. He doesn't like newspaper men who go home and write that Hong Kong is the world's wickedest city.

In fact, he says, there is little serious crime despite Hong Kong's population which is now approaching 4,000,000. During my stay two policemen were wounded in a running gun battle with prisoners trying to escape. But there is little evidence of organized crime.

Opium Dens

Vice clean-ups have been frequent and effective. One of the areas which got a lot of police attention was the Walled City where shutting down of brothels and opium dens was a prelude to levelling of the city enclave to make way for modern apartments.

Viet Nam Peace Mission Proposed

Commonwealth Intervenes

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth leaders intervened dramatically in the Viet Nam crisis Thursday by calling on five government heads to undertake a peace mission to "make contact with the countries chiefly concerned."

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain was appointed mission chairman.

Invited to serve on the commission were the chiefs of government of Ghana, Nigeria, Ceylon and Trinidad-Tobago.

A conference spokesman stressed the five partners were invited to serve and could decline.

This appeared particularly significant in the case of Ceylon's newly-elected prime minister, Dudley Senanayake, who is not attending the Commonwealth conference and was represented by his justice minister, Senator A. F. Wijemanne. Discussion among the four invited was scheduled to begin today.

WILSON READY

At the opening of the Commonwealth conference earlier in the day, Wilson told leaders he was ready to fly himself to Hanoi, Peking and other key capitals to press for peace.

The move by the Commonwealth leaders was decided upon during a secret discussion of the Viet Nam crisis that lasted for more than four hours.

HE'S CONFIDENT

Wilson personally put the scheme up to his fellow leaders, and the word from his aides was that he is confident U.S. President Johnson will support it.

President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, prime ministers Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria and Eric Williams of Trinidad, and Senator A. F. Wijemanne of Ceylon — representing Wilson's four partners —

British Finding Prospects Dim

LONDON (CP) — Prospects of the five-nation Commonwealth having any success with the Communists in bringing about a Viet Nam crisis settlement were regarded as dim in official British circles Thursday night, the diplomatic correspondent of the British Press Association reported.

Peace Bid Delights President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Thursday the cabinet will explore suggestions and hopes for peace in Viet Nam and declared "we are delighted" a British Commonwealth peace mission will visit the countries concerned.

The president also disclosed there have been at least two contacts with North Vietnamese which he said produced word that North Vietnamese have no intention of getting into peace negotiations.

He read parts of what he said was a confidential report and said he was going to declassify them on the spot.

CREW FLEES T-N-T SHIP

The explosives-laden naval auxiliary vessel Laymore, abandoned by her crew, wallowed off the coast of Vancouver Island through the night in towering seas.

Her crew of 17 civilians spent three hours in a lifeboat, amid seas 40 to 50 feet high in a 70-mile-an-hour gale, before being picked up by the ONAV Chilton in gathering darkness. The destroyer escort HMCS Mackenzie laid down an oil slick to take the edge off the seas during the rescue.

Only one injury was reported: a wrenched back, not believed to be serious. Which man was injured was not known.

The Laymore was carrying about 200 tons of old explosives to be dumped at sea. She was under tow by the Chilton, because her engines were not usable.

She was about 35 miles southwest of Tofino at 4:15 p.m. Thursday when her steering failed. An hour later her towline snapped and she was helpless in the storm. The crew rode the heaving vessel for another hour before taking to a lifeboat.

Names of the rescued men, all from Greater Victoria:

J. E. Francis, master; L. E. Walsh, N. Phillips, C. Davies, C. Jenkins, B. A. Barber, N. MacKinnon, R. Simpson, R. Butts, L. Parks, L. A. Morey, W. Billington, K. Tibberty, G. Childs, B. Moran, K. Wilson, B. Harford.

Whether the explosives in the Laymore's hold were dangerous had been a point of hot discussion several weeks ago. An unnamed informant then said the old depth charges and artillery shells contained crystallized charges that were extremely touchy. He said crewmen were terrified of going to sea with such a cargo.

But Capt. R. H. Chicken, technical officer of Pacific Command, at the time called the report "ridiculous."

"The explosive is all quite stable. If it were not, we would not be risking civilian lives to dispose of it. We would be using the explosive ordnance disposal group that makes its living looking after that sort of problem," he said.

The navy said the dumping operation was simple, providing normal care was taken by the crew.

A charge by the informant that the half-refitted vessel is not fit to go to sea was also rebutted by the navy. Capt. Chicken said the Laymore was halfway through a $180,000 refit to equip her for a new life as a scientific vessel with the Pacific Naval Laboratory.

To End War

'Shock Treatment'

LONDON (CP) — Canadian informants suggest the unprecedented five-country Commonwealth mission scheduled to set out next month to seek peace for Viet Nam is designed as a "shock treatment" to end the war.

It also will be a test of Commonwealth effectiveness. They said some of the 21 Commonwealth leaders meeting here called on Prime Minister Pearson to become one of the mission members.

But Pearson declined, supporting Prime Minister Wilson as mission chairman, having in mind that one member of the Western Alliance in the mission is enough. Pearson was anxious the mission be well-balanced; that it represent the various elements of the Commonwealth in such a way that no one could suspect bias.

In Canadian quarters, it was suggested there will be a serious world reaction if any of the countries involved in the Viet Nam issue refuse to open discussions with mission members.

Canadians said the question of whether the Viet Cong will be invited to participate in diplomatic negotiations on a Vietnamese settlement was not raised at Thursday's session of more than four hours.

New Westminster Already Rebuilt

NEW WESTMINSTER—For a team that was supposed to face

all sorts of rebuilding problems this season, New Westminster O'Keefe's are doing rather well. They got back into a first-place tie in the Inter-City Lacrosse League with their 10th win in 13 starts here last night, beating Coquitlam 10-6.

Once again it was the combination of Paul Parnell and Cliff Sepka that sparked the New Westminster drive, scoring three goals each. Doug Wallsmith and Mac Tyler, two young players who have helped make up for the loss of Jack Blonda and Jack Barclay, added two goals apiece.

Dick Crompton was almost the whole show for Adams. Crompton, who had scored only four times prior to last night's game, doubled his total with four more goals.

Adams dressed only 14 players, two below the limit. The clubs play again Saturday in Coquitlam.

University Sports Plan Just Lacking Money

By GUY STANLEY

A complete physical education course, and with it an improved athletics situation, is not far away for the University of Victoria. All that's holding things back is the lack of money.

The university administration took the first step towards the development of athletics recently when it approved in principle the offering of senior year physical education courses. The administration also has created the new position of athletics co-ordinator, and what's more, has filled it.

Robert Bell, 28, a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, now at University of Oregon working on his doctorate in physical education, has been chosen to fill the new athletics co-ordinator role, in addition to handling a light teaching load.

At present the university offers only the first two years towards a physical education degree. Students are urged to finish off at UBC.

Before, sports were considered an extra," said Dean Gilliland. "Now we have a faculty member who is excited about his teaching to help with the co-ordination of all sports."

The new post will make for the smoother operation of athletics and provide for full-time co-ordination of sports at the university, both intra and extra-mural," said Prof. Alfred Loft, chairman of the six-man athletic board which sets athletic policy at the university.

NEW COURTS
The increased load of the new physical education program is also expected to increase pressures on present sports facilities. To help meet the bigger load, four new tennis courts are being built on the Gordon Head campus at a cost of $15,000. They will be ready next week.

Also slated for construction some time in the future are extra gym space and perhaps a swimming pool. But officials are reluctant about setting definite target dates for these projects.

"Operating budgets are never as big as we need and the academic program takes precedence," said Dean Gilliland.

"Because of the lack of money we are going to have to build bit by bit as time goes on, for what's the use of planning ambitiously when we know the money won't be there?"

"The University of Victoria should accept the responsibility of training teachers in this field as it does in other fields, said the dean.

"Our surveys indicate there are 700 teachers teaching physical education in B.C. schools without proper qualifications," he concluded.

To make life even more complicated for Schoendienst, catcher Tim McCarver has been fined $100 and suspended two games by the league for his part in an argument Wednesday with umpire Ed Varga, and relief pitcher Barney Schultz must fork over $50.

Schultz allegedly threw at Pittsburgh's Dom Candelero as the latter went on to lose, 10-0. Schultz was warned, McCarver protested, and Varga threw him out.

The Yankees were also having their troubles, going 16 innings to lose 2-1 to Baltimore Orioles. Pinch-hitter Bob Johnson scored Russ Snyder with a sacrifice fly in the 16th. Snyder had singled and gone to third when catcher Doc Edwards threw Luis Aparicio's bunt into center field.

Hal Reniff, fourth Yankee pitcher, purposely walked Bob Powell, then got Brooks Robinson to foul for the first out. Johnson, batting for Paul Blair, raised a short fly to left field and Snyder slid home to beat Versalles.

Tom Tresh's throw to the plate with the winning run. Minnesota Twins, still winning the big ones, lengthened their American League lead to 1½ games over Chicago, beating the White Sox 3-1 on Jim Kaat's four-hitter.

Twins, who have won seven of 11 games with second-place Chicago this season, got homers from Don Mincher and Zoilo Versalles.

New Zealand Battles Back

LONDON (Reuters) — New Zealand fought back strongly after losing six wickets for 62 runs on the first day of the second cricket test against England at Lord's Thursday.

The recovery was led by 19-year-old Vic Pollard, who added 52 with Bruce Taylor for the seventh wicket and enabled New Zealand to make a respectable 175 in its first innings.

Then New Zealand struck two quick blows, sending back both the England openers for 38. At the close England, one up in the three-test series, was 72 for two.

Pollard, who made 61 not out in the first test, quickly brought some stability to New Zealand's innings after the early disaster. He batted three hours, five minutes for 53. Taylor was at the wicket exactly two hours for 51.

On Clayoquot River

Tofino Pair Find Lost Copper Vein

TOFINO—A Tofino prospector and his cousin have found a long-lost copper showing that loomed as a great find 50 years ago and has been sought by miners for many years.

Walter Guppy and his cousin Kenneth Gibson, also of Tofino, have recently staked a copper showing on the Clayoquot River, the head of Clayoquot Arm, Kennedy Lake.

Fifty years ago people in the area hailed the copper prospect and they had great faith in its future.

It was originally discovered by a J. Martin and a partner by the name of Wollan during the First World War. At that time Mr. Martin was in charge of a fish hatchery at the head of Clayoquot Arm.

Mr. Guppy and Mr. Gibson said the ore body is five feet wide and 150 feet long. Assay returns showed 11.6 copper; 1.76 per cent silver; 0.2 per cent gold and traces of cobalt and nickel.

Duncan Liquor Cases

Magistrate Happy If Cars Seized

DUNCAN—Magistrate Lance Heard would be "very happy" to see the seizure of some of the cars in liquor possession cases, he said in court here Thursday.

"It might stop some of this under-age drinking," he said.

"However," he added, "the court cannot request seizure of the car. Under the Liquor Act we can only impose a fine."

The magistrate was speaking to Allan R. Bergstrom of Duncan, who pleaded guilty to possession of an open bottle of whisky and was fined $50.

ICMP Cpl. W. Y. Baillie said the crown has been seizing cars in similar cases and "Duncan is probably going to start the same procedure."

Bergstrom also pleaded guilty to careless driving on Copper

Canyon Road June 12 and was fined a further $50 and his licence was suspended for three months.

Cpl. Baillie said on June 12 after receiving complaints of a disturbance in the Hillcrest area, police found a carload of young people on Copper Canyon Road.

After a chase at speeds up to 80 miles an hour, the young driver suddenly stopped the car and he and his passengers jumped out and ran into the brush.

When police searched the car they found the whisky and the floor mats soaked with beer. Bergstrom was told to return to the car or it would be towed away. The youth refused and police took to the vehicle.

All or Nothing For Clubhouse

DUNCAN—There can be no half measures in the campaign to build a clubhouse for five sports organizations, Tennis Club president Jeff Hunter said here Wednesday night.

He was speaking to representatives from the tennis, cricket, rugby and two hockey clubs at a meeting called to form a Cowichan Sports Club.

"We don't want professional talkers, but men, women, boys and girls who are interested in doing a first-class professional job," Mr. Hunter said.

Whether the amalgamation idea will work will be known July 3, when a special committee formed at the meeting will outline how a $22,000 clubhouse can be financed.

The proposed clubhouse will be built on a piece of land adjacent to the South Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club at Cowichan Bay.

Mr. Hunter warned the meeting that "all too often in the past similar ventures have failed because only a few have supported it and this time we cannot afford that."

He said a great deal of hard work is ahead and "there can be no half measures." A general meeting will be held at the end of the year and an interim executive was elected with Ned Larson, president; Joan Elvin, vice-president; Peter Owen, treasurer; and Jeff Hunter, Cy Craig and J. Sanders, members at large.

PORT ALBERNI—There is only one answer to the question to be put to Twin Cities ratepayers June 30 on the joint composite bylaw and that is "yes," MLA John Squire said Thursday.

The Alberni NDP member criticized the attitude of two Port Alberni aldermen who are opposing the measure to finance nine projects for the Alberni.

"People who accept public office, whether municipal, provincial and federal, must of necessity accept either the bouquets or the brickbats, depending on their position or lack of position on public affairs or projects," he said.

FUTURE AT STAKE
"Currently in the Twin Cities, the issue is not just a composite bylaw but, in my opinion, the future development, the very social and economic well-being of the two communities is at stake."

"Fortunately we have men of vision on both councils. Unfortunately, we have those with no vision, with no perspective and who fail to realize the needs of communities."

'LEAVE NO DOUBT'
"Mayor Fred Bishop and his aldermen are unanimous in their support of the composite bylaw. These men are to be congratulated on their decision. Their handling of the flood situation and the improvements in sewer, water, roads, parks and so on should leave no doubt in anyone's mind as to their progressive attitude."

"Mayor Les Hammer and three of his aldermen fall into the same category. Aldermen Garnet Reynolds, Earle Bowen and James MacFie are aware that a community needs more than black top and sewer systems. They say the bylaw should be supported. They say we can afford these projects and they say we have gone without too much for too long."

FAILS TO RECOGNIZE
"Regrettably, Ald. Jack Perry talks only in terms of tax cuts and fails to recognize community requirements. He says too much is spent on recreation."

"Regrettably, also, Ald. Howard McLean says we should put it off for awhile—what is the hurry?"

"And, finally, it is regrettable that Ald. Bob Dalton has no opinion for or against the bylaw," Mr. Squire said.

The Greater Victoria Music Festival elected H. C. O'Donnell president at the annual general meeting Tuesday. Vice-presidents are Mrs. N. Michelson and Lloyd Main. Dr. J. F. K. English is treasurer and Mrs. English is festival secretary.

Steam Buffs Plan Ride On Railroad

Steam locomotive buffs will have a chance to ride along with and photograph two climax-type steam locomotives on an excursion planned for Newcombe Lake June 26.

West Coast Railway Association of Vancouver will stage the steam-powered railfan excursion over the logging line of Hillcrest Lumber Co.

West Coast officials say the Hillcrest logging railroad is the last geared-steam railroad in operation in North America.

Government Okays Vot

PORT ALBERNI—City council has received approval from the department of municipal affairs to present the composite bylaw to the voters at the June 30 election.

There were no recommendations for any changes in the plan for the nine projects involving Port Alberni and Alberni.

Three Recommendations

COBBLE HILL—A three-point brief dealing with B.C. Telephone Company service will be presented to the Board of Transport Commissioners at Ottawa by the B.C. Federation of Ratepayers, Vancouver Island branch.

George Bonner, president of the Island branch, said the commission will be holding a hearing in Vancouver Oct. 25. Briefs must be submitted by Aug. 16.

The brief will ask for:

- Free telephone toll service between Victoria and districts north to Duncan;
- A 10 per cent rebate for telephone charges in this area;
- A telephone directory to include all Vancouver Island districts.

Mr. Bonner said the Vancouver Island ratepayers feel a free toll service should be available to many centres which are competing commercially.

The 10 per cent rebate is felt necessary "as the B.C. Telephone Company made enough profit last year to cut the cost of telephone charges," Mr. Bonner said.

He said the Island has needed a complete telephone directory for some time.

Drive to Gold River Produces Shock

Beauty Spot Vanishes

By DON MUNTLEY
CAMPBELL RIVER—The scenic drive to the Gold River on the west coast of Vancouver Island has always been a pleasure to me as a photographer who makes the trip once a week, but last weekend I was shocked and dismayed.

The Elk River Valley which drains into Upper Campbell Lake stretches almost through the full width of Strathcona Park and almost all of it has been logged in the past.

As you wind up through the valley towards Drum Lakes the headquarters of the Elk River, the valley narrows and you pass a logging camp lunkhouse. The road crosses over the Heber River diversion canal, swings around Great Lake to one of the last and most beautiful spots on the road to the west coast.

I Was Stunned

Under the giant firs on the shore of Great Lake nestles a cedar shake log-cabin. Across the road Great Creek tumbles through the deep forested, moss-covered valley and joins the Heber River on its way to the west coast.

Sunday I was stunned to find the last beauty spot at Great Lake was gone, flattened by the logger's power saw.

Like Beaver Dam

The creek was covered with freshly felled trees, looking like a beaver dam. The high noon sun was drying and cracking the broken branches instead of filtering down to the cool waters and moss-covered rocks.

Now there is nothing left for the future generation that will drive this road to visit the new town springing up as a result of a new paper mill boom taking place in British Columbia.

As I sat on a freshly-cut stump, looking at the debris lying in the creek, I pondered these questions:

- Can this wholesale slaughter of obvious recreational assets be stopped before it is too late?
- Is this the new B.C. natural resources' policy to make the big boom into a still bigger booming by high-grading everything that is non-renewable and leave nothing to cool a sweating brow?

NANAIMO TRUSTEE:
He said an in-school survey of future plans of senior students and an industrial survey are finished. The results of the survey will be correlated with a study being carried out by Dr. Leonard Marsh of the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Marsh is investigating the feasibility of setting up a regional college in the Nanaimo area. An interim report is expected in September. The survey will be completed by Jan. 1966.

REGION DEFINED
Dr. MacMillan said all school districts north of the Malahat would be included in a regional college in the Nanaimo area.

He said educational television will be introduced to a yet unnamed school in the district next fall. If it is successful the program will be expanded later, he said.

NEW OFFICE
The school board has received permission from the department of education to go ahead with construction of a $36,000 board office on property adjacent to Nanaimo District Senior High school. The contract has been awarded to Quinney and Fuller Construction Co. of Nanaimo and the building will probably be completed by September.

Working plans for additions to Seaview Elementary School at Lantzville and South Wellington Elementary School have been accepted by the board.

Comox Base Wins Youth Award

Comox—The coveted Mynarski trophy for air force stations' youth programs has been won by RCAF Station Comox for the second year in a row.

Group Capt. E. G. Ireland, commanding officer of the Comox base received the trophy from Air Vice-Marshal M. D. Lister, of St. Hubert, Que., head of the air defence command at a dinner held here Wednesday night.

The trophy is awarded annually for outstanding achievement in the development of youth recreation. It is given to the RCAF base which, through its married quarters community council, makes the most effective use of its resources in developing a program for the community's youth and children.

RCAF Station Comox is the only base to win the trophy two consecutive years. Cold Lake has won it twice but not two years in a row.

Group Capt. Ireland suggested it remain for Comox to win it again next year to establish a firm hold on the cup.

The award was first presented in 1956 by Mrs. Annie Mynarski, mother of Victoria Cross winner PO Andrew Mynarski who died after the crash of his aircraft in France, June 12, 1944.

In attempting to rescue a trapped crewman in the plane, the 26-year-old airman chose "to disregard the opportunity to parachute safely from the burning plane."

Attending the presentation dinner were Mayor George Hobson of Courtenay, J. H. Pantton, director of community programs branch, Victoria; commanding officers of Squadrons 400, 407 and 121, young people who had acted as leaders in the various recreation programs; recreation directors for the air base and married quarters coaches, and managers.

Beatles 'Lower Standard' Ex-RAF Officer Returns Medal

NANAIMO—A former British Air Force officer Thursday returned his Order of the British Empire medal (MBE) and joined the ranks of those protesting the award of the medal to the Beatles.

Douglas C. Moffitt, a retired RAF squadron leader now living here, said he mailed his medal back to the Queen because the award to the singing group "lowers the whole standard" of the MBE.

He said the Beatles had done more harm than good and the British government should have given them some other award "if they wanted to—but not this."

Newfoundland Litter

10 Puppies Worth Up to $3,000

COWICHAN STATION—Perrine Sea Princess Roma is proud and happy because she presented her owner, Mrs. Mercedes Gibson of Beach Road, with a litter of 10 fine, wiggling, chirping Newfoundland puppies three weeks ago.

Three of them are blue and the rest black. Before they were born Mrs. Gibson, who operates the only Newfoundland kennel on Vancouver Island, had orders from California, Oregon, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Alaska, Manitoba and Campbell River.

It was the first litter from the three-year-old mother who weighs 120 pounds. The big black sire, Denela's Stormy Sea who was born in the United States, watches the procedures on the 17-and-a-half acre property of Mr. and Mrs. Gibson with a deep voice from his run.

WON PRIZES
Mrs. Gibson said she started to raise Newfoundlands in 1930 while in Ontario, continued her venture when she came to Vancouver Island in 1947 and has won many prizes.

Another animal from her kennel created a stir in Chile where his master, a high ranking Canadian official of national affairs, had taken him. So impressed were police officials in Chile with the large dog that the Canadian diplomat ordered one from the Beach Road kennel and presented him in a ceremony to the carlineros there.

However, Newfoundlands are not the only breed raised at the large Gibson estate. Mrs. Gibson also specializes in Maltese and Shetland sheep dogs and the property resounds from the happy voices of her four-legged friends.

Chemical Fallout Protested

PORT ALBERNI—An Alberni Valley horticulturist said Wednesday chemical residue fallout is killing plants and shrubs around the west Vancouver Island community.

Colin S. Wilson, operator of the largest wholesale plant nursery near here, said in a letter to Agriculture Minister Ritchie that he must be aware of residents' concern about air pollution.

The horticulturist said fruit trees, shrubs and rose bushes are dying in many areas and cedar trees and cedar-type ornamental shrubs are being particularly hard hit.

"The evidence is apparent every day just by looking at the powdery covering on automobiles," Mr. Wilson said in his letter.

"Medical officials here report an unprecedented increase in respiratory ailments in this area."

"Plants have to breathe as well as humans, and it is reasonable to believe most of our plant troubles could be traced to this chemical fallout," he said.

Driver Plan Offered To Schools

COURTENAY—A nation-wide plan to educate 3,000,000 young people in driver instruction over a period of 10 years will be outlined to the school board at its June 28 meeting by Rotary Club president Randy Klaver.

The decision to hear Mr. Klaver, a car dealer for Chrysler Corporation, came after a letter from him was read in which he said he and his company were concerned over the rising accident and death rate on the highways and felt adequate driver instruction was one of the best answers to the problem.

He said assistance from his company would be on a no-charge basis and in the form of extra-curricular activity.

On June 28 Mr. Klaver will seek approval for starting the plan here in September.

Strategic Bombers Plaster Red Jungle

Giant B-52 in air

Heavies on Stage In Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Twenty-seven B-52 jet bombers on a 2,000-mile mission from Guam rained tons of explosives on a South Vietnamese area where Communist guerrillas were massed for surprise raids in the Saigon area, the defence department said Thursday.

Thirty of the big strategic bombers went on the mission but two collided in the air and plummeted into the sea west of the Philippines with a total of 12 crewmen aboard. One airman was rescued and other survivors were sighted on rafts about 30 miles west of Luzon.

One plane flew over the assigned target, only 25 to 30 miles northwest of Saigon, but a malfunction prevented it from dropping its deadly load.

The pilot of a tanker plane which refueled the B-52s in flight reported that he saw the two bombers collide and crash into the sea.

Air Force sources declined to evaluate the results of the raid on "D" zone. Newspapers who flew over the area after the raid said there was no sign of damage to huts in a jungle clearing but that no people or animals were visible. Trees in the area are more than 100 feet tall, making an accurate damage estimate from the air impossible.

Several sticks of bombs struck near the edge of jungle patches within a few hundred feet of cultivated rice fields and clusters of houses. Newspapers said there seemed little doubt there were casualties and that many must have been civilians.

Red Colony in Crown Colony

Enclave in Enclave Slum Amid Renewal

By Ian Street

The shadow of Communist China hangs heaviest over one small section of the teeming metropolis of Hong Kong.

There, in the section known as the Walled City, time stands still in narrow, twisted alleys flanked by crazily leaning buildings.

This is the home of the small textile sweat shops, some vice, and several thousand people just trying to claw out an existence among fetid garbage piles.

British Touch

The fact that the Walled City has no walls provides a properly British touch.

It crouches on a hillside off the end of the runway of Hong Kong's Kai Tak airport, with big jets roaring overhead at intervals of a few minutes. It is a monument to the Cold War.

Around it cluster the eight-storey modern apartments built under the crown colony's resettlement plan.

Given Tour

I was fortunate to be taken on a tour of the Walled City by assistant police commissioner Charles Sutcliffe, a tough career policeman who came to Hong Kong from East Africa where he was posted during the Mau Mau troubles. Mr. Sutcliffe heads the criminal investigation branch of the colony's police force. He's big, quiet spoken, bushy-browed and greying at the temples, wears a business suit and locks his jacket in the trunk of the police car in case it's stolen. He doesn't like newspaper men who go home and write that Hong Kong is the world's wickedest city. In fact, he says, there is little serious crime despite Hong Kong's population which is now approaching 4,000,000. During my stay two policemen were wounded in a running gun battle with prisoners trying to escape. But there is little evidence of organized crime.

Opium Dens

Vice clean-ups have been frequent and effective. One of the areas which got a lot of police attention was the Walled City where shutting down of brothels and opium dens was a prelude to levelling of the tiny enclave to make way for modern apartments. As we stooped to squeeze through tight spots in the dark and dank alleyways a few of the local citizenry scrambled to their feet and left in a hurry as they recognized the

Explosives-Laden Vessel Wallows in Wild Seas

CREW FLEES T-N-T SHIP

Navy's auxiliary vessel Laymore

By BOB FLETCHER

The explosives-laden naval auxiliary vessel Laymore, abandoned by her crew, wallowed off the coast of Vancouver Island through the night in towering seas.

Her crew of 17 civilians spent three hours in a Merit, amid seas 40 to 50 feet high in a 70-mile-an-hour gale, before being picked up by the CNAV OMTen in gathering darkness. The destroyer escort HMCS Mackenzie laid down an oil slick to take the edge off the seas during the rescue.

Only one injury was reported: a wrenched back, not believed to be serious. Which man was injured was not known.

The Laymore was carrying about 200 tons of old explosives to be dumped at sea. She was under tow by the Clifton, because her engines were not usable.

She was about 35 miles southwest of Tofino at 4:15 p.m. Thursday when her steering failed. An hour later her towline snapped and she was helpless in the storm. The crew rode the heaving vessel for another hour before taking to a liferaft. By midnight the ship had drifted approximately 10 miles to the south.

Names of the rescued men, all from Greater Victoria:

J. E. Francois, master; L. E. Wahl, N. Phillips, C. Davies, G. Jenkins, R. A. Barber, N. Mackinnon, R. Simpson, R. Butts, L. Parks, L. A. Morey, W. Billington, K. Tidbury, G. Childs, R. Moran, R. Wilson, B. Harford.

Whether the explosives in the Laymore's hold were dangerous had been a point of hot discussion several weeks ago. An unnamed informant then said the old depth charges and artillery shells contained crystallized charges that were extremely touchy. He said crewmen were terrified of going to sea with such a cargo.

But Capt. R. H. Chicken, technical officer of Pacific Command, at the time called the report "ridiculous."

"The explosive is all quite stable. If it were not, we would not be risking civilian lives to dispose of it. We would be using the explosive ordnance disposal group that makes its living looking after that sort of problem," he said.

The navy said the dumping operation was simple, providing normal care was taken by the crew.

A charge by the informant that the half-refitted vessel is not fit to go to sea was also rebutted by the navy. Capt. Chicken said the Laymore was halfway through a $180,000 refit to equip her for a new life as a scientific vessel with the Pacific Naval Laboratory.

Viet Nam Peace Mission Proposed

Commonwealth Intervenes

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth leaders intervened dramatically in the Viet Nam crisis Thursday by calling on five government heads to undertake a peace mission to "make contact with the countries chiefly concerned."

Prime Minister Wilson of Britain was appointed mission chairman.

Invited to serve on the commission were the chiefs of government of Ghana, Nigeria, Ceylon and Trinidad-Tobago.

A conference spokesman stressed the five premiers were invited to serve and could decline.

This appeared particularly significant in the case of Ceylon's newly-elected prime minister, Dudley Senanayake, who is not attending the Commonwealth conference and was represented by his justice minister, Senator A. F. Wigmanne. Discussion among the four invited was scheduled to begin today.

WILSON READY

At the opening of the Commonwealth conference earlier in the day, Wilson told leaders he was ready to fly himself to Hanoi, Peking and other key capitals to press for peace.

The move by the Commonwealth leaders was decided upon during a secret discussion of the Viet Nam crisis that lasted for more than four hours.

HE'S CONFIDENT

Wilson personally put the scheme up to his fellow leaders, and the word from his aides was that he is confident U.S. President Johnson will support it.

President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, prime ministers Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria and Eric Williams of Trinidad, and Senator A. F. Wigmanne of Ceylon — representing Wilson's four partners

British Finding Prospects Dim

LONDON (CP) — Prospects of the five-nation Commonwealth having any success with the Communists in bringing about a Viet Nam crisis settlement were regarded as dim in official British circles Thursday night, the diplomatic correspondent of the British Press Association reported.

It was pointed out the governments of North Viet Nam, China and the Soviet Union so far have rebuffed all peace appeals, even from those non-aligned countries.

The mission—the idea for it came from Prime Minister Wilson—was given unanimous backing by the British House of Commons.

Speaking late Thursday night in the Commons, Wilson appealed to both sides in the war to show restraint while the mission is at work, hinting he would welcome a break in American bombing of the North.

All political groups, including the Labor Party's left-wing, applauded the mission. Wilson has been under heavy pressure from his party's rank-and-file to dissociate himself from U.S. policy.

Peace Bid Delights President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Thursday the cabinet will explore suggestions and hopes for peace in Viet Nam and declared "we are delighted" a British Commonwealth peace mission will visit the countries concerned.

The president also disclosed there have been at least two contacts with North Vietnamese which he said produced word that North Vietnamese have no intention of getting into peace negotiations.

He read parts of what he said was a confidential report and said he was going to declassify them on the spot.

To End War

'Shock Treatment'

LONDON (CP) — Canadian informants suggest the unprecedented five-country Commonwealth mission scheduled to set out next month to seek peace for Viet Nam is designed as a "shock treatment" to end the war.

It also will be a test of Commonwealth effectiveness. They said some of the 21 Commonwealth leaders meeting here called on Prime Minister Pearson to become one of the mission members. But Pearson declined, supporting Prime Minister Wilson as mission chairman, having in mind that one member of the Western Alliance in the mission is enough. Pearson was anxious the mission be well-balanced, that it represent the various elements of the Commonwealth in such a way that no one could suspect bias.

In Canadian quarters, it was suggested there will be a serious world reaction if any of the countries involved in the Viet Nam issue refuse to open discussions with mission members. Canadians said the question of whether the Viet Cong will be invited to participate in diplomatic negotiations on a Vietnamese settlement was not raised at Thursday's session of more than four hours.
